A PLUCKY FIGHT.

The County Commissioners hear the Petition to Widen Granite Street Bridge.

Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, agreeable to an order of the County Commissioners made May 24, a hearing was given in the Schemm's Room, on the following petition:

To the County Commissioners of Norfolk County.

The undersigned, Selectmen of Quincy, of the opinion that it is necessary for the security and convenience of the public, that the Granite Street Bridge be widened to the width of the street in this town, under the Old Colony Railroad, and the approach thereon, and they respectfully request that you will give due notice, hear all parties interested, and decide that such alteration is necessary.

WILLIAM A. HODGES, Selectman of Quincy.
WALTER H. BIPLEY, Quincy.

W. G. A. Patten, Esq., appeared for the Selectmen, and the Old Colony was represented by G. H. Benton, Esq., and Superintendent Kendrick.

The hearing was conducted by George W. Vignin and James Talbot of the regular board, and Benj. F. Baker, special commissioner. It is the law we believe that a Commissioner cannot act on a petition from his town, hence County Commissioner Field was present.

The petitioners first called H. T. Whitman, a civil engineer and an ex-Deputy Commissioner. He stated that the street on both sides of the bridge was 45 feet according to measurements. From abutment to abutment the bridge was 50 feet, and of this 7 feet were used for the sidewalk. Granite street was the main artery from West Quincy and the quarters to the Centre. Approaching the bridge from the west, trains from Boston were hid from view until they reached the bridge. For these reasons he thought a wider street necessary at the point in question. Cross questioned he did not think there were narrower points on Granite street, within a mile of the bridge, but there might be between them and West Quincy. A second civil engineer, called by him, in 1877 the narrowest point between the abutments was 32 feet. He admitted that the shorter the bridge the safer. He never heard of an accident which could have been avoided had the bridge been wider. The benefits of widening would be first, it would be safer; second, a sidewalk could be built on the south side of the street.

Hon. William A. Hodges, chairman of the Selectmen, thought the bridge was not wide enough to accommodate public travel, because the street was crooked and unsafe. There was a large amount of travel and he had noticed difficulty experienced by passing teams. Cross questioned, he thought the railroad divided the town nearly equally. The incline both sides of the street made it more unsafe. There was a large number of foot passengers. Thought it very dangerous for a carriage to pass a loaded team under the bridge. G. H. Benton in asking questions was pleased to address the witness as "Capt. Hodges," had heard complaints because the street was narrow at this point. With the respect to his shoulders he believed he would order it widened.

Walter H. Bipley one of the Selectmen believed the bridge too narrow. Thought it had had, and it was generally considered so, particularly because the street followed. Had seen teams run their horses under bridge to overcome grade on opposite side. A four-horse team loaded took considerable room.

J. F. Merrill, a grocer, believed a few feet wider would be a great improvement. John A. Duggan, a Road Commissioner, was of the same opinion, believing the sharp turn in the street and the depression great objections. Thought a plate bridge would be a greater objection to travel. Neither could recall any accidents.

William Field, a granite contractor thought there was a great deal of teaming, perhaps 40 stone teams per day being among the number. The bridge was not wide or high enough.

George W. Prescott, editor of the Patriot, said the bridge was not wide enough. The decline and crookedness being objectionable. Thought it would be twice as safe if eight feet wider. A narrow over-head bridge was not as objectionable as one to go under. Had met with a slight accident while riding over, and knew there had been many accidents.

John Hall, livery stable; T. H. McDonnell, quarryman; and George A. Barker, quarryman believed the point would be better if wider. Mr. McDonnell thought there might be 100 stone teams per day pass.

John Hardwick, a resident of the street for over eighty years, had always considered it a dangerous spot. His niece had with an accident there once.

John H. Rice, ex-postmaster, and G. Harvey Field, ex-Selectman, thought the bridge too narrow.

E. W. Sheppard of J. F. Sheppard & Son, doing business near the bridge, had the same opinion, and thought the bridge was not wide enough.

W. N. Eaton, Selectman, and E. W. H. Bass doing business near by were of the same opinion. The latter said it was a common practice for light carriages to stop while loaded teams passed, and that he could not recall any accident.

For the Old Colony, Superintendent Kendrick testified: Think four to five million passengers cross the bridge per year, and about 125 trains per day. Had been many accidents, and had never heard complaint of the bridge being too narrow. Begun work of rebuilding as the north abutment showed signs of being undermined. Did not intend at first to rebuild south abutment. The bridge was similar to the H. T. Whitman bridge, and that accident had probably hastened matters. The present bridge was known as a tree or hanger bridge. The new one would be a through plate girder. Considerable progress had been made, and made when his attention was called to it. He thought it should be widened. An alteration would require nearly $2000 additional expense for the bridge alone. Delay would be disastrous, because a new bridge could not be built before fall, and now every train had to be slowed. It was the intention to commence to put in the new bridge next Sunday. It was such an alteration that the railroad would never be admitted that a safe bridge could be kept in the present bridge was safe except in case of derangement. It was a skew bridge and the point contained all the bad elements. A longer bridge would have to be materially different. Could not say how many days work had been done on the south abutment when his attention was called to it, but probably Mr. Patten was right in stating a day or two. Did not know but the gang had been doubled the next day. Was asked to waive notice to appear May 31, but said he would endeavor to push the work to completion before the date of hearing June 29.

ADJUDICATION.
Mr. Benton said the law as he read it provided that when necessary the County Commissioners could order the widening. He deplored the fact that a small local board had such extensive powers. They were asked to interfere and arbitrarily order, and they should weigh in the balance the convenience and the inconvenience, the safety and the risk. The expense of widening would be large. Perhaps a different style bridge would have to be built, the present abutment could not be taken down, a foundation put in, and the abutment rebuilt. But the expense was not to be compared with the safety. Eight feet on the end of a 37-foot skew bridge added considerable risk. It had been widened to 37 feet. Some of the witnesses had said it was necessary. He thought if the Commissioners ordered the railroad would be relieved of the responsibility of railroad accidents.

Mr. Patten argued that the control of such affairs was wisely placed in the hands of the Commissioners, who were chosen by the people. They were to protect the people from monied corporations. Perhaps some of the witnesses had used the words of the Statutes, but not one would say it was wise enough. It was the unanimous wish of the town that the street should be widened at this point. The counsel on the opposite side had based his objection chiefly on the item of expense, but he thought that public convenience and safety would outweigh that. Had the railroad been disposed to be fair it would have waived the notice of the hearing. The town did not wish to put the railroad to expense or inconvenience, and therefore had presented this petition. Benton in asking questions was pleased to address the witness as "Capt. Hodges," had heard complaints because the street was narrow at this point. With the respect to his shoulders he believed he would order it widened.

Walter H. Bipley one of the Selectmen believed the bridge too narrow. Thought it had had, and it was generally considered so, particularly because the street followed. Had seen teams run their horses under bridge to overcome grade on opposite side. A four-horse team loaded took considerable room.

J. F. Merrill, a grocer, believed a few feet wider would be a great improvement. John A. Duggan, a Road Commissioner, was of the same opinion, believing the sharp turn in the street and the depression great objections. Thought a plate bridge would be a greater objection to travel. Neither could recall any accidents.

William Field, a granite contractor thought there was a great deal of teaming, perhaps 40 stone teams per day being among the number. The bridge was not wide or high enough.

George W. Prescott, editor of the Patriot, said the bridge was not wide enough. The decline and crookedness being objectionable. Thought it would be twice as safe if eight feet wider. A narrow over-head bridge was not as objectionable as one to go under. Had met with a slight accident while riding over, and knew there had been many accidents.

SUPPLEMENT.

The Quincy Patriot.

SATURDAY, JULY 2, 1887.

Five Leaf Clover.

Dr. Bosman, the Brooklyn dentist who advertised himself by sending Mrs. Cleveland a five-leaf clover for the anniversary of her wedding day in the Adirondacks, now wishes that he had studied the subject of superstitions before offering such an ominous gift. A five-leaf clover, among those who believe in such fantasies, is symbolical of a death. To pick it means a death in the family of the picker; to give it to anybody else is equivalent to the presentation of a death warrant. The three-leaf clover is also deemed unlucky to find, pick, or give away. The only lucky clover, blessed by the fairies, has four leaves. Superstitious friends of Mrs. Cleveland anticipate a death within her domestic circle during the coming year as the consequence of Dr. Bosman's mischievous donation, and all the eloquence of Colonel Ingersoll and the members of the Thirteen Club could not convince them to the contrary.

Cost of the "Know How."

There was much "gumption" evinced by that particular darkey, whose master was a surgeon, who performed on another darkey an operation requiring a high degree of skill. This latter darkey was well-to-do, and the surgeon charged twenty-five dollars for the operation. When he met the doctor's servant afterward, this dialogue ensued: "Dat was a mighty steep charge of the doctor's for cutting on me tudder day." "How much did de boss charge?" "Well, Julius, he charge me twenty-five dollars." "Dat long, nigger, dat ain't much charge." "Well, he wasn't more dan three or four minutes dat ting, and I tink five dollar was all he oughter took." "Look-a-hear, Sam: you don't un'stand dat ting. You see de boss have to spend a great many year larins' how to use dat knife, an' it cost him heaps o' money. Now de fact an' he only charge you five dollars for de operation: de tudder twenty be charged for de know how." That is it—the time and money to learn the know how.

LARGE PENSIONS. Three largest payments on account of arrears of pensions which have been made passed through the pension office recently. Francis Patterson, of the 15th New York Infantry, who is totally blind, receives $12,337; Walter S. Stephens, of the Eighty-first Ohio Infantry, $12,346; and Jacob Dingman, of the Thirty-fourth Iowa Infantry, $12,441. Patterson's claim has been pending for many years, and has been twice rejected. The application in behalf of Stephens, who is insane, was first made in 1855. He has been bedridden for years, and his money will go for the benefit of relatives who have been caring for him. Dingman's application has been pending for ten years. All three were printers. They will receive $2 a month each from this time.

A BLUNDER. A peculiar blunder occurred in the engraving of the plate from which the reverse side of the five-dollar certificates were printed. It will be noted that on the back of the certificate are the facsimiles of five silver dollars. The third one from the left corner of the certificate has "trust" spelled "trast." Where the word appears in other places on the certificate it is spelled properly.—The Argonaut.

A SINGULAR DRESS. Mrs. Nelson McCormick of North Branch, Me., has made a dress, the like of which is probably not to be found. The material is common good thread, white, and the entire dress is hand crocheted work, beautifully flowered and strong, and 10,000 yards of thread were used in its construction. The sleeves are crocheted in the proper shape, and are fastened in by a lock crocheted stitch. It is very beautiful and Mrs. McCormick was six months completing it.

TO BE BORED. A tunnel is projected to be bored under Gray's Peak, in the Rocky Mountains. It will be placed 4,000 feet below the summit of the mountain, will be about 25,000 feet long, and have direct communication between the valleys in the Atlantic slope and those of the Pacific side, with a shortening of some 300 miles in the transmountain distance.

The Brooklyn Gazette says: "Arthur E. Spaul, formerly of this city, and now Boston Herald correspondent at Quincy and vicinity, is the happy father of a baby boy. In the postal which the excited parent sends informing the Gazette of the fact he says, 'In haste.' Yes, indeed, Arthur: You'll be in haste several times before that baby gets into short clothes, if our experience counts for anything."

Worldly Philosophy.

"Did you ever notice," inquired a stock drover, "the close resemblance between a car-load of steers and the human race?" "Can't?" "Well, I can. I've been shipping cattle for thirty years and I've often thought of it. You see, it is the business of the steers to hold each other up—a kind of mutual help association, as it were. That's the way men ought to be. But the critters crowd and hook so that the first thing you know one of 'em is down. Just like the human race. An' after they get one down do they crowd one side an' give him a chance to get up? No sree. They proceed to walk on him and to trample him into sausage. That's just the way with human nature."—Chicago Herald.

From a Girl's Composition.

Boys are men that have not got as big as their papas, and girls is young women that will be young ladies by and by. * * * Man was made before woman. When God looked at Adam he said to himself, "Well, I guess I can do better than that if I try again," and then he made Eve. God liked Eve so much better than he did Adam that there has been more women in the world than men ever since. * * * Boys are a trouble. They are very wearing on everything but soap. * * * If I could have my way, half the boys in the wide world would be little girls and the other half would be dolls. * * * My papa is so nice to me that I guess he must have been a girl when he was a little boy.

Never.

Never get in a rage.
Never disparage another by name in a letter.
Never say a word or write a line in a passion.
Never take a physic until you have tried patience.
Never forget that of the word unsaid you are master—of the word spoken you are slave.
Never say what you would do under any given circumstances; you might do just the opposite.
Never find fault, until you are as sure as you are of your existence, that a fault has been committed.—Sauveterre Journal.

MONSTER AEROLITE. An aerolite of great size recently fell near St. Joseph, Ind. The residents were startled by a sharp, quick sound, and a severe jarring of the earth. It was at first thought to be an earthquake, but word came that some great projectile had buried itself in the woods near by. The neighbors went to the spot and found that the aerolite had badly damaged a huge oak and buried itself in the earth to a depth of at least 15 to 18 feet. Several fragments of the stone lay scattered around, and the atmosphere had a sulphurous odor. From the size of the hole made, it is estimated to weigh not less than two tons.

THE COST OF WATER. It costs New York city, at present, about $08.50 per million gallons for its water. It costs Boston about $90 for the same amount. Hoboken pays a private company $75 per million gallons, and Bayonne and East Newark pay Jersey City $100 per million gallons. Jersey City at present pays, besides interest on Water bonds, about $30.

NO MORE CHILD PEDDLERS. After July 17th the law recently passed to prevent illegal peddling and begging by minors will be in force. This law provides a fine of $200 or punishment by imprisonment six months, for any parent or other person, who employs a minor under the age of 15 years, in peddling without a license, when a license is required by law, or in begging, or who having the care or custody of such minor permits him to engage in such employment.

GOOD ADVICE. The Milford Journal says: "Let it be kept at the front that Mr. Powderly's advice to workmen to eschew liquor drinking, would at a single blow banish woe, wretchedness and want from thousands of now miserable homes in Massachusetts, and establish firmly in their stead peace, contentment and happiness. This is a proposition so self-evident as to admit of no controversy. Liquor dealers themselves know it to be true, and that the saloon is the greatest obstacle to the happiness and prosperity of the workman. To its devotees, the saloon is the ball and chain which they ever drag after them."

Miss Freeman, president of Wellesley College, has received 580 applications from young women wishing to enter Wellesley next year. There are only 100 places vacant at the present time.

SUMMARY OF NEWS.

The present population of New York city is 1,653,420. Seven years ago it was 942,292.
The Queen's jubilee was celebrated in Glasgow by a public dinner to 6,000 poor people.
One of the idiosyncrasies in New York city is parasols for pet dogs.

New York now has a law by which the use of stoves in passenger coaches on any road of more than 50 miles in length is forbidden.

A minister in Somerset County, Me., has his sermons printed monthly, and sends them to those of his parishioners who do not go to church.

Eight hundred permits for the retail sale of fireworks having been issued in New York, the Fire Commissioners have decided to shut off the supply.

Denver is to have a new hotel at a cost of $1,280,000.
Of the earlier Presidents, Washington was the wealthiest. At his death his estate was valued at $200,000.

San Francisco claims a population of 210,000.

A fruit grower of Bucks county, Pennsylvania, has sent Mrs. Grover Cleveland four boxes of strawberries, fourteen berries to the box.

The character of houses in Florida may be inferred from the statement that one Orlando contractor has built twenty-one cottages in nine weeks.

A large pine tree at Watkinsville, Ga., which the bees have occupied for many years, was cut down the other day, and in it was found a hollow 38 feet long 8 inches in diameter completely filled with honey.

When Jefferson entered the White House he was a wealthy man, but he lost all his property and died insolvent.

A submarine cable will soon be laid from Vancouver to Australia. It is said, touching at Hawaii and Fiji. A subsidy of $400,000 a year has been obtained from the Canadian, Hawaiian and Australian governments, and the cable will probably cost $10,000,000.

China will shortly have a stamped coinage for the first time in her history.

POOR JOHN!

It was an August day; the heat was intense, and Mrs. Arde, on her way down town to do some shopping, stopped in at Mrs. Bray's to rest. She found Mrs. Bray, looking worn and anxious, busy mending her little son's diminutive knickerbockers. She put aside her work at once, however, on seeing her friend and begged Mrs. Arde to sit down.

"I'm real glad you came in," she said, "for I've been dull enough lately and haven't gone anywhere or seen anybody."

"Have you been sick?" asked Mrs. Arde.

"Well, I can't say I've been actually sick, though I've had the headache almost constantly. But I haven't felt in the mood for amusement. I often think I have more trouble than any one else living. I tell John it's no wonder I'm getting gray so fast. I'll look like an old woman before my time."

"What is the matter?" asked Mrs. Arde.

"Well, in the first place, there's to be a new superintendent at the mills on the first of September, and I expect nothing else but that John will lose his place."

"Why, isn't he liked?"

"Yes, but there are always so many discharges when a new superintendent comes in. If John loses his place I don't know what we will do—go to the poor-house, I suppose."

"Not so bad as that, I hope!" and Mrs. Arde could not repress a smile. "At least not while you own such a nice cottage as that you have just built on Pierce street. Mr. Arde and I drove past it yesterday and admired it very much."

"Oh, that's just another source of trouble. We built it to rent, you know, and it has been finished three weeks, and no sign of a tenant yet. I tell John it will eat its head off. It was a great mistake to build so far out. People won't go out there to live; it's too inconvenient. I was saying to John yesterday that it wouldn't surprise me at all if we didn't rent it for a year—and think what a loss!"

"Of course you remember the old saying about crossing a bridge before you come to it?" said Mrs. Arde.

"Oh, it's easy for you to talk; it isn't your bridge," was the rejoinder. "I wouldn't worry about the house so much if it were not that we are anticipating a heavy loss in another direction. John very foolishly went security on a note for two hundred dollars, which will fall due in three days. Not a word have we heard from the man who owes it, and I am morally certain he won't pay a cent of it. I feel fairly sick whenever I think of it. I told John yesterday that I'd never forgive him if he ever went security for any one again. I don't think a man ought to ask such a favor; it is taking a mean advantage of friendship."

"Why not hope that the note will be paid?" asked Mrs. Arde gently.

"There's no ground for hope," and Mrs. Bray sighed heavily. "How we are to manage I don't know, for it took every cent we'd laid by to build that cottage; and I told John when it was finished that we'd have to scrimp more than ever now. And we must calculate on a heavy doctor's bill to."

"Why so?"

"Well, Georgie had the diphtheria last January, you know, and all but died, and it stands to reason he'll have it again, his throat's so tender. I'm worried about him all the time. I don't take a moment's peace. Life is so strange! It does seem as if some people were shut off from everything like enjoyment. With me it's nothing but care and trouble from the beginning to the end of every year."

"I have always maintained that life is pretty much as we make it," said Mrs. Arde quietly, as she rose to go. "Of course trouble comes upon us sometimes—we must expect that—but it's a bad plan to borrow it. I think it is better to hope for the best under all circumstances and put our faith in the Lord. He's sure to bring things out right in the end. And you know that sometimes what seems like a great trouble turns out to be a blessing in disguise."

"Oh, it is easy for you to feel that way; you never have any worries," returned Mrs. Bray. "Your husband is well off and you have no children. I was saying to John this very morning that I must certainly have been born under an unlucky star."

"Poor John!" thought Mrs. Arde, but she made no reply.

A month later Mrs. Bray returned her friend's call. Her face still wore a worn, harassed expression, and she sighed as she accepted the chair Mrs. Arde pushed forward.

"I thought I'd run in for a little while," she said, "but I don't know that you'll thank me for coming. I'm dull company for anybody these days."

"I hope your husband hasn't been discharged," said Mrs. Arde.

"No; he's kept his place, and he and the new superintendent are great friends; I only hope it will last," was the reply.

"Then that worry is off your mind; and your cottage is rented, too. Mr. Arde and I drove past it yesterday and saw some children playing on the porch."

"Yes, it's rented, and to a very nice family," said Mrs. Bray. "They pay a higher rate than we expected to get too."

and that's a great help. But of course they won't stay—we can't expect it. I was saying to John a few days ago that it wouldn't surprise me at all if the house was empty again by the end of December, there are always so many changes made about that season of the year."

"You must hope for the best. How about that note you feared would not be paid?"

"Oh, that trouble is off my mind thank goodness! The man paid it. But it would be just like John to lend his name to another. I'm worried about it all the time. He don't know how to refuse a friend anything. I am always telling him that his generosity will bring us all to the poor-house yet."

Again Mrs. Arde thought of "Poor John!" and wondered how he endured life tied to a woman who crossed every bridge long before she came to it and found rocks and burrs in the smoothest path.

This is not a fancy sketch, and I venture nothing in saying that among those who read it there will be a few who can call to mind people who, like Mrs. Bray, borrow trouble on every hand.—Christian Weekly.

It is positively ridiculous to read that at Wellesley, or at any other female college, Miss Sophronisa Frisby graduated with the degree of "Master of Arts;" and that Miss Angelina Nipkins was sent forth upon the world as a "Bachelor of Science." In the name of common sense why not arrange the titles to suit the sex? "Old Maid of Science" would not be very attractive, but it would certainly be as appropriate when applied to a sweet girl graduate, as the present unfeminine title of "Bachelor." Surely, it cannot be a very difficult matter to find fitting names for the degrees which are given to the young ladies who finish with honor a collegiate course. Angelina a "Bachelor," indeed!—Boston Home Journal.

COSTLY JOKES. Among the visitors at the Vassar College Commencement was a graduate who has made $10,000 in a unique manner. Upon her graduation she was promised by her father a dollar for every cent she earned by working at anything. She accepted the offer, and, entering a factory, where she obtained six dollars a week, kept on working until her father had paid her $10,000 and broke the contract, because his little joke was becoming too costly.

POSTAGE STAMPS. The finest collection of postage-stamps in the world belongs to a Spanish nobleman, who is said to have spent more than $200,000 in stamps. His collection has a library to itself in his Parisian residence, there being from 200 to 300 volumes. The rarest postage-stamp is that of the island of Mauritius, in 1820. Be it red or blue, canceled or uncanceled, provided it has the word "postoffice" on its margin, it is worth $300.

The past session of the Legislature has made important additions to the work of the Superior Court. After July 1st all divorce cases are to be brought and tried in that court, thus relieving the Supreme Court of that irksome and disagreeable duty. Another act has authorized all persons having claims against the Commonwealth to sue them in the Superior Court, where they are to be tried before three judges instead of a judge and jury. This act puts an end in Massachusetts to the ancient doctrine that the government cannot be called to answer in its own courts to the claims of the subject or citizen, and opens the door of the court of suits against the State as freely as against individuals.

Utah is thinking of applying for admission to the Union as a state, and it is said that a constitution prohibiting polygamy would receive favorable attention from congress. The Mormons are shrewd, and might adopt such a constitution for the purpose of securing admission, and immediately after they could amend it by striking out the prohibition, and then, as Tweed said, "what are you going to do about it?"

The Boston Home Journal says: "Father McGlynn has changed his tactics and now denounces the Roman Catholic Church in the most violent terms. It was only a few weeks ago that he declared in Boston his stout allegiance to the papacy, but now he avers that he has known all along that the church is a political machine, 'relentless, stupid and grossly ignorant.' Why then did Father McGlynn pretend to be fond of it for so long? Has he not laid himself open to charges of hypocrisy?"

Thousands of acres of land in Oneida and Herkimer counties, N. Y., were sold at auction at one cent an acre the other day.

The Fifth Anniversary.

The Soldiers' Home, on Powder Horn Hill, Chelsea, recently celebrated the fifth anniversary of its opening. There were present some four or five hundred ladies and the hall was well filled many being obliged to stand. Two or more hours were spent in reading different reports by officers of the home, who are called the Relief Corps, and are all ladies.

At the conclusion of the business transactions the premises were visited and a survey from piazzas and windows was enjoyed. The views from every part were found to be grand and as far as the eye could reach the landscape was of surpassing beauty. The home contains now 103 soldiers; 107 is its limit. It was built for a summer hotel, and its broad and spacious halls and roomy piazzas extending all around the house, are filled with easy chairs, hammocks, swings, lounges and settees, which look very tempting and restful. The first floor is occupied with parlors, offices, a large entertainment hall, etc., etc. The second and third floors are sleeping apartments. The basement has billiard-room, kitchen, laundry, a nice dining-room, smoking-room, and a card-room.

The guests carried with them very generous lunches, while splendid coffee and tea and ice cream were added by the home. Six large tables were spread in the dining-room and all the tables were loaded; every kind of cake, sandwiches, cold meats, relishes, salads and fruits were provided in abundance.

There are 47,000 Jews in London, and they are the richest portion of London's population. One hundred of their families average an income of $50,000 per annum.

TOWN of QUINCY.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of a town shall make such regulations as it judges necessary for the public health and safety; respecting nuisances, sources of filth and causes of sickness within its town, and whoever violates any such regulations shall forfeit a sum not exceeding one hundred dollars. Public Statutes, Chap. 80, Sec. 18.

The Board shall give notice of all regulations made by it by publishing the same in some newspaper of its town, or in such other place as it may deem proper. Such notice shall be deemed legal notice to all persons. Public Statutes, Chap. 80, Sec. 19.

In accordance with the statute in this case, made and provided, the Board of Health of the Town of Quincy have adopted and declare the following to be the rules and regulations of said Board.

REG. 1. Every householder shall keep his premises free from all nuisances and sources of filth that are injurious to the public health and safety; and any nuisance, source of filth, or cause of sickness, found on private property, must be abated upon notice from the health officers and within such time as they shall designate. If such premises are not put in proper sanitary condition the same shall be vacated upon order of the Board of Health.

REG. 2. All privy-vaults and cesspools shall be emptied before the fifteenth day of May. During the summer season they shall be disinfected and emptied as often as (upon examination by the Board of Health) shall be deemed necessary to keep them free from offensive odors.

REG. 3. From the fifteenth day of May to the first day of October, no privy, vault or cesspool shall be emptied between the hours of six o'clock in the morning and ten o'clock in the evening. This shall not apply to the cleaning of cesspools by the use of any odorless excavator approved by said Board of Health. Water-tight vessels or barrels with tight seals only shall be used in removing the sediment from said cesspools, or such matter as cannot be pumped by said excavator, and disinfectants shall be used in all cases.

REG. 4. No person shall deposit the contents of any privy-vault or cesspool, or any other filth, upon any premises within the limits of this town, without first having obtained a permit to do so from the Board of Health.

REG. 5. No privy-vault or cesspool that is not water-tight shall be maintained within two rods of any well, spring, or other source of water supply used for drinking purposes. REG. 6. Water from the kitchen sink shall not be allowed to run under any house, nor shall any cesspool for the retention of such waste water be within five feet of any house, except the cesspool be cemented water tight. All drains connecting water closets and sinks with cesspools, shall be trapped and ventilated so as to prevent the passage of gases into the house. No house, the cellar of which is habitually wet, shall be used as a dwelling.

REG. 7. All rotting or decaying animal or vegetable matter, including garbage, and every kind of filth must be removed from all cellars, yards, and outbuildings before the first day of June.

REG. 8. No person shall throw or deposit in any street, sidewalk, court, square, public place, or vacant lot, or into any pond, creek, river, brook, canal, or ditch, any dead animals, decaying vegetables, offal, dirt, garbage, refuse, manure, or the contents of any privy-vault or cesspool, or filth of any kind. No person shall allow any liquid from swill to be poured upon any public or private way within the town.

REG. 9. No person shall allow the sewage, waste water, or liquid of any kind from his premises, to flow into any canal, pond, brook, or open ditch, or upon any sidewalk, gutter, or street surface, or upon any public or private way, or to form stagnant pools in any place within the town.

REG. 10. No person shall be allowed to maintain a piggery within the town without a permit from the Board of Health.

REG. 11. Any well, spring, cistern, or other source of drinking water, that is contaminated from any surface drainage, cesspool, privy, sink, or other source of water pollution must be disused.

REG. 12. No person shall be allowed to carry on any offensive trade or manufacture within the town without a permit from the Board of Health.

REG. 13. When a householder knows that a person within his family is sick of small pox, diphtheria, scarlet fever, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Selectmen or Board of Health of the town in which he dwells, and upon the death, recovery, or removal of such person, the rooms occupied and the articles used by him shall be disinfected by such householder in a manner approved by the Board of Health. Any person neglecting or refusing to comply with either of the above provisions shall forfeit a sum not exceeding one hundred dollars. Public Statutes, 1884, Chap. 58, Sec. 1.

REG. 14. When a physician knows that a person whom he is called to visit is infected with small pox, diphtheria, scarlet fever, or any other disease dangerous to public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Selectmen or Board of Health of the Town; and if he refuses or neglects to give such notice he shall forfeit for each offense not less than fifty nor more than two hundred dollars. Public Statutes, 1884, Chap. 58, Sec. 2.

REG. 15. Cholera, small pox, diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles, and typhoid fever, are deemed by the Board of Health to be diseases dangerous to the public health and safety.

In all cases where death shall occur by reason of any infectious disease, or any of the deceased shall be conveyed to the place of its interment in a hearse.

REG. 16. No child or adult person belonging to a household in which small pox, diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles, or other contagious disease, dangerous to the public health, exists, or whose residence has a common entrance with such household, shall be allowed to attend any public or private school until the expiration of two weeks after the death, recovery, or removal of such sick person; and every such child or adult person shall be required to present to the teacher of the school, a certificate from the attending physician or a member of the Board of Health, stating that he is free from contagion and that the requirements of this regulation have been complied with.

REG. 17. No person, teacher or scholar, shall become a member of any public or private school unless he has shown satisfactory evidence that he has been successfully vaccinated.

REG. 18. No person shall sell, offer for sale, or bring into the town for sale, any diseased, putrid, stale or unwholesome meat, fish, vegetables, fruit, or provisions, or any adulterated article of food.

All complaints, in relation to nuisances and sources of filth injurious to the public health and safety, must be made in writing, to the Board of Health or its agent, with a description of said nuisance and of the premises on which it exists, with the owner's name if known to the complainant. Such complaints must bear the signature of complainant. Whenever such complaint shall be made as aforesaid, the Board of Health, or its authorized agent, shall proceed to examine the premises complained of, and shall take measures to abate the nuisance, if such is found to exist, after giving legal notice to the parties entitled thereto.

These Rules and Regulations, and all the Statutes of the Commonwealth relating to health and disease shall be strictly enforced in the Town of Quincy.

WEST QUINCY.

As usual, the boys were very demonstrative in the night before the Fourth. Bonfires were kindled on the streets, small bonfires overturned, and at the railway quite a serious explosion of powder occurred, shattering several windows in one house.

Charles Dinneen, a lad of about 15, was seriously injured on West street, was seriously injured at Badger's quarry on the Fourth by an explosion of a can of powder. It burned his face, arms and breast severely and it was thought fatally, but under Dr. Sheehan's treatment is improving.

The roof of the West Quincy depot caught fire Wednesday evening. It was discovered and promptly extinguished by Alphonse Reinhalter.

For five successive quarters the West Quincy post office receipts have exceeded the limit of four class offices, and Postmaster Burns expects daily to learn that it has been made a Presidential office.

SUPPLEMENT.

The Quincy Patriot.

SATURDAY, JULY 9, 1887.

SELLIE'S PICKPOCKET.

"Oh, Mrs. Howell, my purse is gone," said Nellie, looking sharply at the young man at her side. "I am sure," she added, in a much lower tone, "this fellow has taken it." We were sitting in a box at a pugilist theatre.

"But he looks too respectable for a thief," said I.

"I am certain of it," she continued, "for I felt his hand close to my pocket, and see how guilty he looks."

The poor, accused youth was, it is true, looking wonderfully at the pretty, flushed face near him, but I failed to detect guilt in the soft, brown eyes and mild expression.

"My dear, be you quite sure you had your purse with you before you make such a harsh statement," said Mrs. Howell.

"Oh, I am quite sure. I remember running back to the salon the last moment and searching well before I found it. What could be more convincing?"

"Then my dear, if there was a sum of any consequence in it we will have this person examined before the police," said Mrs. Howell, in a decided tone.

Fortwith I dispatched to bring a servant de ville, the little old woman with streaming pink cap-ribbons, who, for a moment, showed theatre-goers their faces, tucked a petit-bon under their bet, and presides over their welfare generally.

After a few uncomfortable moments during which the object of all interest complacently watched the progress of an entrance, the little woman came back, followed by a civil-looking man, who tagged our victim on the shoulder and requested his presence for a moment at the nearest card-table.

We followed, Nellie looking nervous but determined, evidently convinced that her resolution on this occasion would be rewarded.

We crossed the street and entered the forbidden doors of that terror of gamblers, the police station, and the two enlight-ened young men, after a few questions from the officer, permitted, without the least reluctance, an examination of his pockets.

I noticed a crest on the delicate blue silk handkerchief and the Russian leather pocket-book which the officer ruthlessly drew to light, but no purse was found.

With more than ordinary French politeness, the accused expressed regret that mademoiselle had been deranged by the occurrence, and with only a very mildly reproachful glance and bow he left the room.

We also started on our homeward way, not a little mystified by the affair.

A woman awaited us on entering our door, for there laid the purse where, just for an instant it had been laid by mademoiselle while she gave a highly important pat to the little curls around her face and a farewell tilt to her hat.

The next morning an apologetic note that Nellie had written with downmost care conveyed to its destination by means of the address that the officer had seen down, and the unpleasantness was dismissed from our conversation, if not entirely from our minds.

Nearly two years later, at the close of a long summer day, we found ourselves in a little cultivated bit of ground that seemed to cling to the rugged side of a snow-mountain. A succession of scenes and impressions new to a mind attuned to nature had so beguiled us that before we commenced the descent to our hotel the deep shadows of night were closing fast about us.

We ran down as quickly as the loosely scattered stones would permit, dreading a place midway down the mountain side, where a late torrent had washed down, rock and earth across our path for many yards.

Nellie suddenly gave a sharp cry and fell, a confused mass of dark clothing and sliding stones at my feet.

"I have sprained my ankle," she cried, and before I could reply, a manly voice speaking with a slight foreign accent was heard.

"Try allow me to assist you, madame, I was a little in advance of you," he added, and was glad to be able to offer you an arm, for the path is really perilous at this hour.

He gently raised Nellie from a heap on the ground to her own slender, graceful figure.

An attempt to step, however, was so painful that he rather carried than assisted her. At the door of our hotel the opportune young man was revealed by the light to be dark-eyed and pleasing of feature.

Something in the trick of his voice, as Nellie having been deposited on the sofa, he bowed and left us, seemed familiar, but the impression was gone in a moment.

The next morning the card of Earnest de la Perriere was handed to me and I found the kindly face of our cavalier of the previous night before me, anxious to know if madame had rested well and if he who was so desolate at the mishap, might be allowed to shorten her hours of confinement by sending some new books and flowers.

What could I do but smile on so pleasant an offer for my young sister, and permit any one disposed to be sympathetic to make an occasional visit.

The tedium of our stay and Nellie's slow recovery was lightened to an extent that soon alarmed me, for I detected a brightness in Nellie's face when M. de la Perriere's voice was heard, and a soft, almost caressing tone when saying only the commonplace greetings of the day.

What was best to do? I had not been wise in allowing a stranger to ingratiate himself into our favor.

I sat one day worrying my poor, racked brain once more in contriving a way to diminish the intimacy I now felt to have been rashly encouraged.

Suddenly M. de la Perriere stood before me, begging to be allowed to sit by my side. He told me in plain, earnest words, of his love for Nellie and his desire to make her his wife. He gave me undisputable proof of his wealth, good position, and high moral character.

What a weight was lifted from my heart! I need not tell of warm assent and sisterly congratulations.

We returned to the hotel and I judiciously left the enamored swain to tell the old, old story.

When next I entered the room Nellie was looking quietly content, and Earnest radiant, but with an amused light in his eyes as he drew an ordinary little slip of paper from a well-worn Russia leather pocket book.

"Would you like to hear my betrothed's first love letter to me?" he said. And he coolly read aloud the contrite note Nellie had written to her pickpocket.

A Tin Pan Incendiary.

An old-fashioned two-story dwelling house and barn belonging to Alexander Willard in Cohasset were burned last week inside of thirty minutes.

The cause of the fire was somewhat peculiar. A new tin milk pan had been placed on a bench near the house, and the sun acted on it as a sun-glass, concentrating intense heat on the dried clapboards, burning a hole through the building and firing it in short order.

Mr. Willard was at work in the field at the time of the fire, and his knowledge of the affair came too late for him to save his property, though every effort was exerted with pans of water.

The building has stood for 130 years, and was naturally somewhat decayed, allowing ignition more easily under the circumstances than might have occurred on a more modern structure.

AN EXCELLENT MAYOR. The Boston Home Journal says: "Labor organizations and their political parties are very often unwise. At the last municipal election in New York they violently opposed the candidature of Mr. Hewitt on the ground that the gentleman was wealthy and cared only to grind the faces of the poor. But Mr. Hewitt was elected in spite of these melancholy fears and dismal croakings, and he has proved to be the best mayor that New York has had in many a long year. Instead of 'grinding the faces of the poor,' Mayor Hewitt has washed them and brightened them; he has closed up dens of vice, and pulled down and cleaned out many noisome rookeries. All this is so much for the benefit of the poor, who, instead of being pulverized under the Hewitt regime, find themselves able to breathe better and to live better than ever before."

MINOR MORALS FOR MARRIED PEOPLE. The last word is the most dangerous of infernal machines. Husband and wife should no more strive to get it than they would struggle for the possession of a lighted bomb-shell. Married people should study each other's weak points, as skaters look out for the weak parts of the ice, in order to keep off them. Ladies who marry for love should remember that the union of angels with women has been forbidden since the flood. The wife is the sun of the social system. Unless she attracts there is nothing to keep heavy bodies, like husbands, from flying off into space. The wife who would properly discharge her duties must never have a soul "above buttons." Don't trust too much to good temper when you get into an argument. Sugar is the substance most universally diffused through all natural products. Let married people take a hint from this provision of nature.

President Cleveland's portrait is being engraved by the U. S. Bureau of Engraving and Printing, to be used at some future time to adorn a note, bond or stamp.

A Large City.

If any one were to walk one way thro' all the streets of London, he would be obliged to go a distance of two thousand six hundred miles, or as far as it is from Niagara to San Francisco. This will give an idea of what would have to be done in order to see even the greater part of London. In our approach to this city, as well as in our rambles thro' its streets, we shall not be struck so much by its splendid and imposing appearance as by its immensity. Go where we may, there seems to be no end to the town. It is fourteen miles one way, and eight miles the other, and contains a population of nearly four million people, which is greater, indeed, than that of Switzerland or the kingdoms of Denmark and Greece combined. We are told on good authority that there are more Scotchmen in London than in Edinburgh, more Irishmen than in Dublin, and more Jews than in Palestine, with foreigners from all parts of the world, including a great number of Americans. Yet there are so many Englishmen in London, that one is not likely to notice the presence of these people of other nations.

This vast body of citizens, some so rich that they can never count their money, and some so poor that they never have any to count, eat every year four hundred thousand oxen, one and a half million sheep, eight million chickens and game birds, not to speak of, besides calves, hogs and different kinds of fish. They consume five hundred million oysters, which although it seems like a large number, would only give if equally divided among all the people, one oyster every third day to each person. There are three hundred thousand servants in London, enough people to make a large city; but as this gives only one servant to each dozen citizens, it is quite evident that a great many of the people must wait on themselves. Things are very unequally divided in London; and I have no doubt that instead of there being one servant to twelve persons, some of the rich lords and ladies have twelve servants apiece.—St. Nicholas for June.

SATURDAY, JULY 9, 1887.

NEW PROCESS. Louisa County, Va., is excited over the alleged fact that after a white handkerchief, which had been folded four thick and laid over the face of a dead woman, had been removed, there were four distinct pictures of the woman, about the size of a 25-cent piece, plainly printed on the cloth. Spirits of camphor had been applied to the face before the handkerchief was laid on it.

CHANGE OF DAY. It is quite probable that the next national G. A. R. encampment will be asked to change Memorial Day from May 30 to the last Sunday in May, in order to prevent the desecration of the day as one of the most frivolous of holidays. Ball games, picnics, cock-fights, horse trots, boat-races, debauchery and revelry are hardly in keeping with a day set apart to honor the memory of the patriotic dead.

"NO DAY FOR WESTLIN." The late Dr. Macadam used to tell of a tipsy Scotchman making his way home upon a bright Sunday morning, when the good folks were wending their way to the kirk. A little dog pulled a ribbon from the hand of a lady who was leading it, and as it ran from her she appealed to the first passer-by, who happened to be the inebriate, asking him to whistle for her poodle. "Woman!" he retorted, with that solemnity of visage which only a Scotchman can assume, "woman! this is no day for whistling!"

It's a Fine Painting.

A lady who has a girl in her employ fresh from some region far removed from the theatre, thinking to give the girl a treat, purchased a ticket for her a few evenings ago. The girl went, but returned before 9 o'clock. "What is the matter? Did you not like it?" asked the mistress. "Oh, I liked it ever so much; it's a fine painting." "But," inquired her mistress, "why have you returned so soon? Surely you did not see it all?" "Yes, ma'am, I did. I went in and sat down and looked at the large picture hanging up in front. People kept coming in and pretty soon there was quite a crowd all looking at the picture. Then they took it away and some men and women went to talking up there where it had been about something that didn't concern me, so I got up and came home. But I enjoyed the picture." —Beacon.

Good Old People.

The Norfolk County Gazette of the 2d inst. has the following: "On Wednesday last Mr. Charles Brock of Milton, venerable in years, but youthful in spirits, made us a friendly call, and in the few moments he had to spare, he gave us some interesting reminiscences, which we jotted down, and stored away for future reference. Mr. Brock, in January next, will be 90 years of age, and today he is as bright, cheerful and sprightly as most men of sixty, the result of a temperate and well ordered life. Mr. Brock told us that he had been a Jackson Democrat, and left the party on the slavery question. For thirty-four years he has been the town treasurer of Milton, and continues to handle the cash of his fellow townsmen. During his short visit to Hyde Park, he called upon his old friend, Mrs. Matilda Vose, of Mt. Neponset, who will be 90 years old in July next. These venerable people both in excellent health, have a host of friends who are looking forward with pleasure to the celebration of their centennial."

Story of a Draft.

It was in the days of the early railroad, when it was yet new; the days when the journey from California was less of a little jaunt than it is now; when greenbacks were not popular there. One summer morning, a man, walking in happy and feverish haste with wild excitement beaming all over his face, stepped into the office of a well-known banker. "I want an exchange for this on New York." "All right. What is it?" The man looked fearfully around him and then brought out a packet. "It's $25,000 in greenbacks." "I guess I can do it. Going east?" "Yes. I'm going tomorrow. I don't want to carry all this with me. Couldn't do it. Sure to get robbed. So give me a draft. How much?" "Oh, seeing it's you, one per cent.—$250." "It goes." So the banker made out a draft on New York and took the money. "You're going tomorrow, are you?" "Yes." "Would you mind taking a little parcel for me and handing it to my brother?" "Certainly. I'll do it with pleasure." The banker went into the other room and presently returned with the parcel. "Just put it in your valise, and don't lose it, will you?" "I'll take the best of care of it." "Thank you. Good by. Pleasant trip." Arrived at New York, the Californian went to the address and delivered the package. Then he presented his draft. The man gave him the identical $25,000 in greenbacks he had in San Francisco. He had carried them all the way himself.

Warm Weather and Health.

The human organization is more sensitive to changes in temperature than the most delicate thermometer. Thus, for example, when there is an increase of heat, there ensues a series of remarkable changes which conform the action of the body to the new physical conditions. In the first place, if the change be large, the communication between the pores and the arteries is increased, and the transpiration contains a larger amount of water in both vaporous and liquid form. This cools the skin, and thereby the body, and also facilitates the throwing out of slight impurities in the system. Other processes are likewise stimulated, whereby the transpiration is increased in amount. This relieves the lungs of the extra work which would otherwise be imposed upon them, and allows nature a way of cooling the body without having recourse to the expedient, so common among the higher animals, of enlarging the flow of saliva and of ejecting the breath in jets so as to evaporate the watery elements of the liquid. Without this wonderful provision, men in warm weather, or when engaged in hard work, would pant like dogs.

In the second place, the change in the weather is telegraphed along the pneumogastric nerves to the palate, the stomach, the liver, and even to the imagination. The appetite changes in consequence. The heavy, heat-producing foods so agreeable and wholesome in cold weather, but which would be over-heating and unhygienic in warm, becomes distasteful. The whole being yearns for fruits, light acid wines, sub-acid vegetables, iced drinks and foods, and dainties rather than solid dishes. These supply the physical mechanism with the nitrogenous elements required to replace the worn-out portions of the muscles and nerves, and with sufficient carbohydrates to furnish the system with the heat and energy demanded for exertion and existence.

In the third place, the supply of energy to the nerves and brain is changed in character. In cold weather it is comparatively uniform, enabling a man to work uninterruptedly from dawn until long after dark, but it now becomes spasmodic. In the morning and late in the day the supply is large and the activity intense; in the heat of noon it is small, and a feeling of fatigue supervenes. Thus it is in the temperate climes—the farmer toils all day long, while his tropical colleague almost invariably indulges in the noonday siesta.

In the fourth place, the vital functions are more severely taxed. The excretory organs work with greater frequency and the liver's action is intensified. This is well illustrated by the increasing darkness of the skin in lands approaching the equator, and in the jaundice, liver complaints and kindred disorders which afflict the dwellers of cold countries who take up their residence in warm latitudes.

All of these changes could be successfully undergone by a man in perfect health who would conform to the conditions imposed by a warmer climate. As a matter of fact, but few men possess absolute health, and what is worse, no one willingly gives up past habits and regulates life to meet new requirements. The Englishman in the tropics will eat roast beef and drink brandy; the American insists on pie and rye; the German, on rich sausages and made dishes. As a result, even the healthiest men find their systems dominated by the humors resulting from these violations of natural laws. With those who are born unhealthy, or who become so from the necessities of their daily life, the disorder is more serious. Their blood is more impure, and they are far more prone to sickness and injury. Hence the boils, carbuncles and eruptions which are seen everywhere in warm weather, and hence the flushed face, the quick breath, the feverish body, the "bilious headaches," so called, and a thousand and one other ills.

Here is where modern science steps in for man's relief. With some beneficent blood-purifier, she expels the humors which cause all these disorders, builds up the system, restores the great vital functions not only to their normal activity, but also to that demanded by the increased temperature and the new meteorological conditions of life.

There were many tentative blood-purifiers in the past, all valuable to the extent of their beneficence, but far surpassed in usefulness when Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co. introduced their famous Extract of Sarsaparilla.—American Analyst, June 1, 1887.

Liquor Profit.

The National Bureau of Statistics shows that on the $700,000,000 which annually passes into the tills of the retailers of intoxicating liquors in this country, there is a profit of 133 1-4 per cent. If poor people had to pay such a tax as that on bread there would be a rebellion. But when a man tosses off a glass of whiskey and pays five cents for the drink and seven or eight cents to the barkeeper for the trouble of handing it to him he generally thinks the barkeeper an awfully good fellow, and is ready to fall on his knees and thank him for the bargain.

THE MECHANICS' FAIR. The preparations for the Mechanics' fair in Boston this fall are progressing, and present indications point to one of the most complete exhibitions ever given. A special prize of a gold medal of honor will be given for the best painting exhibited at this fair for the first time in public by an American artist, who has never been awarded a gold medal. A woman's department is also to be a feature.

Druggist's License.

By a recent act of the Legislature the granting of one or more sixth-class liquor license in each town to druggists is made compulsory with mayors of cities and selectmen, and it is provided that licenses of no other kind shall be granted to them. It is also provided that books of sale shall be kept in which every sale of liquor shall be entered. It will be noticed that the law also designates that licenses shall be granted to only "fit" persons. Following are the two important sections of the above-mentioned act:

SECTION 1. No license, except of the sixth class named in Section 10 of Chapter one hundred of the Public Statutes, shall be hereafter granted to retail druggists or apothecaries for the sale of spirituous or intoxicating liquor. One or more licenses of the sixth class shall be granted annually by the mayor and Alderman or Board of License Commissioners of cities, the Board of Police of the city of Boston or the Selectmen of towns to retail druggists and apothecaries if the applicant is a fit person to receive such license and is not disqualified to receive the same under the provisions of Section sixteen of said chapter. Retail druggists and apothecaries shall not be subject to the second clause of Section nine of said chapter, when the sale is made as hereinafter provided upon the prescription of a physician.

SECTION 2. Sale of intoxicating liquor of any kind by retail druggists and apothecaries for medicinal, mechanical or chemical purposes, shall be made only upon the certificate of the purchaser, which certificate shall state the use for which the same is wanted, and shall be immediately cancelled at the time of such sale, in such manner as to show the date of cancellation.

Patents.

The number of patents issued by the government steadily increases. There are now 400 or 500 granted per week. Yet it is said by those in position to know that not one in five of the devices patented ever brings to the inventor enough money to pay the official fees. It is found, too, that as a rule, the patented articles which have the most money in them are the comparatively simple ones which can be manufactured at a small cost. It is very remarkable, too that there is scarcely a new device invented. The vast majority of patents are in the nature of improvements on something previously patented. The issue of a patent to one inventor, with the publication of a description of the invention, is certain to bring to the office application for improvements thereon varying in number from one to fifty.

Credulity seems to be an actual force in human nature. There are hosts of people who are ready and willing to believe anything, even a confidence man. Why the Nova Scotia skipper who so readily parted with his $93 to the friend of five minutes, the other day, was allowed to leave home without a guardian no one in these health-enriching parts will ever ascertain. It would be an excellent, and doubtless, a paying thing if some keen fellow should write a small book telling country folk what not to do when they come to town. Fifty cents invested in such a volume would have saved the Nova Scotia tar nearly two hundred times the original outlay.—Boston Home Journal.

The Royal Arcanum reports receipts for last year for widow's and orphan's fund of $1,543,308.68, and expenditures $1,512,000.

The new coins which are now to be issued in England in honor of the Queen's jubilee year bear the likeness of her Majesty, with a small crown above the widow's cap and veil.

Poetry.
Life's Mission.
Life is wasted if we spend it
Idly dreaming how to die;
Study how to use, not end it;
Work to finish, not to fly;
Gaily living—best preparing
For a life with God above;
Work! and banish anxious caring!
Death's meekness to active love.
Death is but an opening portal
Out of life to life on high;
Man is vital, more than mortal,
Meant to live, not doomed to die.
Praise for present mercies giving,
With good works your age endow;
Death duty by Christ like living,
Heaven attain by service now.
Miscellaneous.
HOW I WAS PROMOTED.
"Tom," said the chief, "there has been a rather mysterious robbery at Barrow-town, and it's likely to give the 'locals' some trouble. So I wish you to go down as soon as possible."
This order I received one hot day in August, on the day after the robbery had taken place. Of course, I did not let much time pass before I was at the station and fairly started. Once there, Harrytown is a quiet, picturesque little town. It seemed almost too dull to be able to host the doubtful honor of having had a full-grown robbery. Still I like the quiet town, for it was there that I gained my first promotion. I was met at the station by the local inspector, a stout, pompous, excitable little man, who looked doubtful as to the prudence of the Scotland Yard authorities in sending such an ordinary looking mortal as myself.
"Oh," he remarked at last, "so it's you, young man, is it? I don't think we are likely to trouble you much this time.
The fact is, almost, we have caught the culprit ourselves."
I merely bowed and expressed a wish to see the prisoner; and we both set off for the country jail, perhaps a mile or so away.
Well, it certainly seemed as plain as day to me that the unhappy wretch on whom Inspector Muggidge had laid his full grasp could easily have proved an ally had not that worthy officer continually interrupted him with—"Better keep that for your examination, my good fellow; or it'll all be brought up against you, my man, you know."
I told him seriously, as soon as I could in private, that the man he had arrested was no more guilty than I was; but he simply smiled incredulously, and asked who else could be the culprit, as this was the only really abandoned character of the town, and it was plainly the work of some one who knew the place.
"Besides," he added, "it isn't very likely that any one could beat me on my own ground, where I know everybody, you know; and if he didn't do who did?"
With which really unanswerable argument he accompanied me to the scene of the robbery, where we were shown over the premises by the mistress of the house.
When I saw the ground-floor window by which access had been gained to the house, I quite agreed with the worthy "local" that it was not the work of a "new hand," that from the fact that his footprints, wherever we could trace them showed no hesitation, but rather a thorough acquaintance with the grounds; the culprit, whoever he was, must have had some opportunity of visiting the scene of operations, and probably lived somewhere in the neighborhood.
It seemed that the thief had entered the house by a window in the rear, and carried a small box of valuables from the room of the master of the house, who had been staying at a friend's that night. Both facts showed an intimate knowledge of the premises on the part of the culprit, and strengthened my opinion of the "local."
We were informed that the lost basket —an ordinary tin cash box—had been almost filled with various articles of jewelry, and, therefore, the loss was rather heavy.
Of course the knowledge that there would be a good reward for the recovery of the missing property did not abate my zeal.
Still, in spite of my eagerness to discover the culprit I could make but little of the case, and might even have to come over to the opinion of the "local" but for two very important facts, namely, the footprints in the garden-bed were smaller than those of the prisoner. Now although a man may wear boots several sizes too large for him, on occasions, yet he can hardly walk with comfort in shoes an inch or so too short.
Very much annoyed at my want of success, and dreading the chaff I would be sure to get when, compelled to give it up,
I should return to town, I was not particularly delighted next morning to see Mr.
Muggidge coming up the road to the house accompanied by the editor of the Barrow-town Banner, who had determined, he said, to write up the account of the robbery himself.
But there was no escape, and so, prepared for a host of questions, I was walking slowly to meet them when my eyes were caught by something bright among the bushes by the roadside. Yes, there lay no doubt of it; there lay the lost box, empty, of course. Without stopping however, I walked as calmly as possible on to the inspector, and was introduced to Mr. Shears, the editor.
"I'm simply wonderful how obliging
I had, however, I even, when Mr. Muggidge hinted that he was pressed for time, volunteered myself to give Mr. Shears the information he wished, and to go over the robbery had occurred—I had for the last two days spent from the forenoon to the dusk there—I turned to the end of the column devoted to the "Great Robbery," and read, with a chuckle, the announcement that "the loss of the jewelry would be less felt had there not been between the two bottoms of the box almost two hundred pounds in bank notes, which, unfortunately, the numbers had not been taken."
That evening, as usual, I left the grounds at dusk, after spending most of the day in watching—though apparently engaged in something else—whether any one went near the spot, a few hundred yards from the grounds, where lay the box on which I specially depended as a bait to hook the thief. By walking slowly I managed to let the shades of evening close around me before I was far beyond the spot where I had made up my mind to watch and await developments.
Eight! Nine! Were they never coming, and was my trap laid and baited in vain?
Ten! Surely they should have come by this time. Still—was that a sound on the road? Yes, and coming from the village, too. There were evidently several of them, and I began to regret not having brought some one to assist me.
Nearer they came, laughing and talking, and I cautiously drew further back from the road. And now they were opposite the spot where the box lay hid. But—what!
They're gone by; and in the hearty guffaw of the man farthest away of the three I recognize Farmer Lobbins, an honest fellow, whose acquaintance I had made.
After this I had almost given up, and was actually making up my mind to abandon the affair, when a faint sound from down the road, made me creep on as low as possible once more. It was no hoax this time. A short, thin man, who I easily recognized as a man-of-all-work who had been helping the gardener that day, was creeping stealthily down the road, close to the bushes. As soon as he reached the spot where the box had been thrown he lit a small lantern to aid him in his search.
This time I felt sure; and so, when the man blew out the light after securing the supposed treasure, the capture was made.
"Oh! why—yes?" observed the worthy
Mr. Muggidge, who was in the office when I brought in the prisoner that night.
I had my eye on that fellow all along."
The man made confession; indeed, he was caught in the act, and could not deny it.
The jewels were all recovered, and the reward proved very useful in helping me to marry and settle down quietly when, one month later, I received my promotion.

Living Within our Income.
This was the motto of every family and systematically lived up to, how much worry and care would be avoided; how many sleepless nights and concealed heart-aches could be saved. It is hard for a household, once started in habits which slightly over-reach the income, with a growing family and increasing expenses, to stop and retrace and give up the things they have become accustomed to think they can not live without. The time to commence the reformation is when the people start out on their journey. What may be economical or extravagant for you, all depends upon the amount of your income.
The family which is possessed of an income of $12,000 may be said to live very economically if they can come out fourth of it and live on $9,000 and, likewise, the family with $800 ought to save one-quarter of it and live on $600. Even the day laborer, who may only earn enough for the plain subsistence of his household, should at least endeavor to save one-fourth of it at the end of the year. If only $10 he is safe, and if $25, and he has his health, he is richer than the man who earns $10,000 and spends it all and one dollar more. It is only a question of time when they would pass each other, the one going up and the other down. Always earn your money before spending it, instead of spending first and earning after. If you wish to improve your home, or purchase some new comforts, or make any other expenditure, remember no matter how pressing the need, it is much easier to earn the cash with the stimulus of the enjoyment in view, than to pay up the debt or mortgage.
When once contracted it hangs heavy and drags down the spirit, and it is much easier to spend each other, the one going up and the other down. Always earn your money

Important Articles.

A special town meeting has been called by the Selectmen for next Saturday evening to consider several important articles. Article 2 is to see if the town will accept the chapter relating to voting in precincts. There seems to be a strong and growing feeling in certain sections of the town that this would be beneficial. It would result in the establishment of voting places in South Quincy, West Quincy, Wollaston, and Quincy Point as well as the Centre. A large vote would be cast, and voters would not be compelled to leave their work to go to the Centre. It would naturally be more convenient, and would increase the vote of the Board of Registrars, but the aim should be, the greatest good to the greatest number. The objectionable feature is that the precinct voting applies only to State and National elections.

Article 3 is to see if the town will purchase the electrical attachment to the waste now at the pumping station and appropriate a sum not exceeding $225. The people have had an opportunity to pass upon this matter, as it has been in position several months, but it must be confessed that there is an honest difference of opinion as to its efficiency.

Article 4 is to see how many electric lights the town will establish and maintain for one year, for street lighting purposes. This article we understand is to see what amount of money would be required to give procuring an electric light company is organized.

Article 5, calls for another park in South Quincy, desiring the town to purchase the tract where the St. John's club now plays ball. If the town will purchase the tract, the article is to secure a ball field, why don't they come out and say so, but they know in this they would be unsuccessful. If purchased for a park it would then come under the control of the Park Commissioners, and permission would have to be obtained to play ball, and further no club could use it exclusively. It would seem as though the south part of the town with its Faxon park of thirty acres, was well provided. If any section of the town is to have a pleasure ground now, it should be West Quincy.

Article 6 relates to sprinkling the turnpike and other streets. It is a blessing to have the roads watered these hot days, but it is in one sense a nuisance. Whether the cost will save the town much as to repairs is a question the Road Commissioners should endeavor to answer. The town however has no right to appropriate money for sprinkling the streets.

Article 7 desires the location of a waste strip on Quincy Bay at Atlantic for a park, or common. At the present time it will be hard to make the voters see the necessity or feasibility of this purchase, but we have little doubt future generations would regret the lost opportunity.

Article 8 is the most important, it is to see if the town will purchase the property and franchise of the Quincy Water Company. It is generally admitted that the water works should be owned by the town, rather than by a company. The object of the purchase are two, first the probable expense, and second the doubt as to the construction and material used, especially in the street mains. The company is so far as we know, has no money to transfer its property to the town, although no dividend has been paid the stockholders.

On the first page of the PATRIOT will be found the chapter under which the Water Company was organized, and the powers, privileges, etc. It will be noticed that the town may at any time purchase the works providing a two-thirds vote can be obtained; the cost to be fixed by agreement with a company. The steps now being taken by the company in building a large reservoir in Braintree, ensures a plentiful supply of water for thirty years at least. As town property the street mains would be more generally extended, and so far as we know, has no money to transfer its property to the town, although no dividend has been paid the stockholders.

The photograph car which has been located at late on Wild place, started Tuesday evening for Lynn. As it was turning into Hancock street, however, it capsize smashing the windows, furniture, etc. It continued to block the street until the next morning when it was righted. It was delayed two or three days for repairs.

NO CHANGE AT PRESENT. We learn that the National Monument Wollaston Bank has decided, by a very close vote of the directors, not to move to Robertson's Block. It seems as if they had let a grand chance for a permanent location slip. It is said that the bank will be requested to move to the new year when its lease expires, as the town will need the rooms now occupied by the bank for the School Committee, and other "city" officials.

DEACON LOTS. The sale of beach lots at Houghs Neck, by the Manet Land Co., continues; and we learn that some twenty or more lots are sold. A wealthy gentleman, owning considerable property in Florida, has purchased a lot this week. It is expected one or more houses will be put up this season. The land owned by this company is destined in a few years to become the most popular part of Houghs Neck.

INTENSE HEAT. The weather in the south and west was extremely hot on Sunday and Monday. In Washington it was 102 in the shade, the highest but once ever recorded at all the primary stations, at the residence of Penn and Liberty streets, at the Water street near the new Presbyterian Church, one at Wollaston, two at Quincy Neck, two on Garfield street, two on Will and street, and two at Atlantic.

DURGIN'S DRUG STORE.
To our Soda Water Patrons:
To meet a growing demand on the part of many of our customers who wish to drink
Durgin's Soda Water
AT HOME.
GUARANTEED TO KEEP.

The following delicious syrups are offered in bottles:
LEMON, ORANGE, PINE APPLE, STRAWBERRY, COFFEE,
VANILLA, RASPBERRY, GINGER.

Price 50 cents per bottle; $5 per case of one dozen.
By ordering an assortment of these Syrups and a box of Soda Water, or better yet, buy a Soda Water Machine, invented by our townsman Avery, and have Durgin's Soda Water right at home.

The finest ICE CREAM and WATER ICES can be easily made from Durgin's syrups, by merely adding a proper proportion to Ice Cream or Ice Water as required, and freezing. Our ICE CREAM, SOFT, now this season, is taking wonderfully; don't fail to try it.

You may order our Syrups of your grocer, who will sell them at prices as above.

GEORGE S. BASS, Observer.

An Encouraging Meeting.

The horse railroad project received a boom at a preliminary meeting on Thursday evening, which was well attended by influential and well-to-do citizens.

J. F. Merrill called the assembly to order. H. M. Faxon, Esq., was chosen chairman, and Warren W. Adams, secretary.

W. F. Lunt gave the meeting the benefit of the information obtained by him and Mr. Merrill which was in substance as follows:—

The line was proposed to build a line from the Centre to the Quincy Point bridge, and another from Greenleaf street to Hancock, School and Franklin streets to South Quincy, and thence by Water and Copeland streets to West Quincy.

The length of both lines, side tracks and all, was by actual measurement four miles and seventy-nine rods. A T rail with paving would cost $4,000 per mile; with paving $5,000. A sixteen foot close car for two horses would cost $850, while open cars would cost $625. Good second-hand box cars could be obtained at from $300 to $400 each. Light horse similar to those used in Brockton were valued at $125, while the South Boston Company pay $105 a pair. Horses were worth from $25 to $40 per set. Two stables, one at each end of the route, could be built for $8,000. To run cars half hourly would probably require twenty-eight horses and five cars. Making the total cost about $34,000. If that route were used the cost would be $7,000 per mile. The estimated running expense was $108 per week, while six passengers to a trip would pay $172 per week.

Henry H. Faxon asked several pertinent questions, and thought a horse railroad would be a benefit to real estate.

J. F. Merrill said New York parties were anxious to build, equip and control the road, but he thought it would be better for the town if it controlled by home capital.

John Faxon thought the rise in land would pay the town more than the cost of construction.

Thompson King, J. E. Tirrell, A. E. Sprout and others spoke on the subject.

On the motion of Mr. King a committee of fifteen volunteered to investigate horse railroads, and report at an adjourned meeting to be called when ready. The committee were:—Messrs. Thompson King, H. H. Faxon, John E. Graham, Thomas Faxon, Walter T. Babcock, J. F. Merrill, George L. Gill, John Faxon, H. M. Faxon, W. F. Lunt, John E. Dyer, Fred H. Smith, Warren W. Adams, Levi Stearns and W. J. Webb.

The above committee organized, with H. M. Faxon chairman, and W. W. Adams secretary, and then appointed a sub-committee of five to do the work, viz:—Messrs. Graham, King, Faxon, Lunt and Smith.

The Special Town Meeting.

This evening's town meeting promises to be largely attended as its important articles are of deep interest.

Article 2, one of the principal articles, is defective in the word Chapter is quoted. It should be 254 instead of 245. The mistake was with the printers. The error will probably prevent any action under the article.

The South and West are wide awake for the whistle attachment and probably many will cast a vote for its purchase; but if it needs as much repairing after it is purchased as it has since it was placed there, it will be a costly thing.

Whether the article to purchase the franchise and property of the Water Company will come to a vote is doubtful. The suggestion that a committee investigate the works, pipes and supply before purchase is a good one. No doubt the subject will be well ventilated at the meeting.

Fun in a Pop.

An event looked forward to with much interest by many of Quincy's business men was an excursion to the famous Isles of Shoals. They were to leave Boston Tuesday evening, having chartered the City of Portsmouth, steam ship, to Marblehead during the night; thence to the fishing grounds; take dinner at the Shoals, and reach Boston Wednesday evening. About 100 wishing to avail themselves of this grand opportunity embarked at the appointed hour on Tuesday evening in full anticipation of a glorious time. It was a "gander party," and all can imagine what a time 100 joy men could have on such an occasion. We would never be forgiven did we chronicle all the incidents. Some it is said turned in immediately for a night's rest, others staid on deck and gazed at the towering elevator at South Boston, for a fog rolled in and there the boat lay at anchor all night. Many did not understand the nautical terms, straight, flush, etc., but nevertheless the crew understood the captain's orders and in the morning another start was made. The elements however held a full hand and bluffed the would-be sailors, who again returned to anchor. Other attempts to steam out of the harbor were unavailing, as all day long the heaviest fog of the season was settled on the harbor. All returned home many hours earlier than they had anticipated.

Picnic.

The Universalist Sunday School held their annual picnic at Melville Gardens, Downer Landing, on Wednesday. The day was fine but the attendance was smaller than usual. The grounds were in excellent condition and there were large parties from other places present. Mr. George Orson was at his old post, where he has been for several years, to receive tickets. The attractions for the children were numerous, and the day was spent very pleasantly. The clambake at this favorite resort are excellent and many partook. There being a good moon some of the party stopped in the evening and had a jolly time.

Street Repairing.

Filling holes in a street with stones as big as a man's fist and having them to be kicked all over the road may be the way our new superintendent thinks best, but many who drive over the highway to Germantown and Houghs Neck beg leave to differ.

Donchietter Bicycle Club.

The next regular monthly meeting will be held at the Club Room, Lower Mills, Dorchester, on Tuesday evening, August 2d. The following social runs are announced by Capt. Wallburg: August 7, Nantuxet; start at 9.30 A.M. August 14, Houghs Neck; start at 10 A.M. August 28, Brockton; start at 9.30 A.M.

Canton.

At a special town meeting Wednesday evening the town of Canton voted by ballot 276 to 50 to accept an act to supply the town of Canton with water. A meeting to elect commissioners and provide for the issuing of bond will be held Aug. 10.

The Old Fellows partook of ice cream at the close of their Tuesday evening meeting.

The local lodge of the Order of St. George will picnic at Downer Landing, next Saturday.

Special town meeting this evening. The interest in predicting voting and the water question will cause a large attendance.

The Rev. D. M. Wilson returns from North Chatham today and will occupy his pulpit next Sunday and the Sunday following.

The Ivy on the public library is growing finely this hot weather, and it will not be many years before the stone work will be entirely hidden.

Mr. Wollaston Lodge, L. O. O. F., will work the third degree at the next meeting but has voted not to do any more work after Tuesday until September.

In the Probate Court at Hyde Park Wednesday letters of administration were granted on the estate of Mrs. Emma F. Bumpus, late of Quincy.

State Detective Thomas, formerly of Quincy, is about to remove from Brockton to North Adams, having been assigned to the western part of the State.

We have received an interesting letter from our townsman, H. T. Trask, who is now in Kansas City, Missouri, which we will give our readers next week.

Flowers and fruit for the Boston hospitals may be left on the afternoon and evening of Thursday next at the house of Mrs. A. Moreton Swallow, Hancock street.

The new sign-boards the road commissioners are having put up on our streets are a great improvement. Some of the streets must have been surprised, never having seen one before.

As this is the flower season we give our readers a very interesting story on "Mrs. Fritz's Flower," this week. Some people are unkind enough to say that we have a Mrs. Fritz in this town.

There will be no service in the Universalist Church until the first Sunday in September. The pastor, Rev. S. G. Davis, was obliged to leave last Monday for Ohio, to visit his sister who is very low with consumption.

Mr. Osborne Rogers has received at the Temple street market this week, a lot of nice early peaches raised by his father at Marshfield. We never saw handsomer peaches raised in Massachusetts so early in the season.

Although there are rival large lines to Houghs Neck, the accommodation is still meagre. On days when yacht races take place, a larger number wish to go down about noon, but are unable to find room on the regular barges.

Henry H. Faxon is after the druggists on the Sunday law, and has warned each to discontinue the selling of goods other than medicines prescribed by physicians and for surgical appliances on the Lord's day.

McDonnell & Sons come in for a large share of the paving supply, furnishing nearly all the small blocks used by the city of Boston. This season they have already sent 200,000 and have orders for 400,000 more. Six to ten tons are kept on the road all the time delivering about 5,000 a day.

Schedule of liabilities and assets of Frederick A. Moreland of Quincy, a fancy and dry goods dealer, who has become insolvent, has been filed. His liabilities amount to $27,063.33, nearly all in account with Boston dry goods houses. His assets consist of stock in his store and fixture, which are mortgaged.

The courts for the new Tennis Club were laid out on the Miller estate yesterday, and will be ready for play today. There are two double ones and one single, and are situated in a delightfully shady spot. The president of the club desires us to state that the annual dues of $5 must be paid before using the grounds.

Druggist's License.

The Boston Globe of Thursday has the following article in reference to our townsman, druggist licenses and the observance of the Lord's day:

The run question has assumed a new phase in Quincy. Ever since the ex-Policeman Faxon had left with the druggists last January the latter have been able to sell their goods on the Lord's day. The means for gratifying their desire came from an unexpected quarter. The recent changes in the law relative to druggists' licenses in prohibitory towns. By the new law the selectmen are instructed to grant one or more licenses. The druggists in this town were quick to perceive the advantages of the new law, and applications were immediately made by three or four of them to the selectmen for the necessary license. The druggists who apply for them, as that selectmen had been instructed to keep a list under the existing law. Henry Faxon, who, of course, had rather the druggists could dispense water than extract of rye, has adopted new tactics to circumvent the pill dispensers. To-day the following letter was sent to various Quincy druggists:

QUINCY, July 26, 1887.

Dear Sir—Your attention is called to chapter 291 of the acts and resolves of 1887, relative to the observance of the Lord's day. You will please govern yourself accordingly and oblige.

Yours respectfully,

HENRY H. FAXON.

The communication is rather a blunt one at the first glance. The Chapter refers to allows druggists to sell "drugs and medicines, articles ordered by the prescription of a physician, and mechanical appliances used by physicians or surgeons."

In an interview today Mr. Faxon expressed it as his intention to keep a sharp lookout for the druggist who sell cigars, toilet articles, etc., not exempted by the new law.

Election of Officers.

Hancock Lodge, I. O. G. T., elected the following officers last Tuesday evening:

C. T. —Elihu W. Baker.

V. T. —Vesta J. Rich.

S. T. —Eugene A. Stearns.

A. S. —Edward J. Goodridge.

F. S. —Charles Rich.

H. S. —Henry Church.

C. —Carrie F. Cochran.

M. —Eugene Rich.

D. M. —Sarah Stewart.

L. G. —Hannah Miller.

S. —John Stewart.

R. H. S. —John J. Flowers.

L. H. S. —Katie McDonald.

S. —Katie H. Hersey.

The above officers will be installed next Tuesday evening, by the installing officer, G. C. T. Wilmot. H. Cleverly of North Weymouth.

Houghs Neck.

This quiet and beautiful summer resort is fast approaching its zenith of popularity, and the past week has been a busy one for the hotels. Applicants for cottages are invariably met with the response that our cottages are all full and engaged till the end of the season. Numerous picnic parties have visited our shores during the week, and the facilities for such amusement were given a good test on Thursday last, when several hundred people from surrounding towns, including Brockton, North Stoughton and East Stoughton, were gathered here for a day's amusement and pleasure.

A child's party in one of the dancing pavilions is suggested for the amusement of our little ones, some afternoon in the near future.

Among the guests of Mearns' Great Hill House during the week were the Wm. B. Rice, Mrs. Timothy Reade, Mrs. Edward H. Dowson, Mrs. John Williams, Mrs. Steadman Williams, Mrs. George Koy, Mrs. J. Frank Faxon, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Abbie Dowson, Mrs. Peter Butler, Miss Bell Butler and Mrs. Richard Onley.

A very social and pleasant dancing party occurred at the Casino on Wednesday evening last. These parties are becoming quite popular.

Mr. Edward Lunt of Stoughton, Miss Lena Lunt and Mr. Charles Emerson of Boston, were guests of the Great Hill House during the week.

Mr. Dan Padella of Worcester, is the guest of Mr. John T. Cavanaugh, at his summer villa on Bay View avenue.

Mrs. I. M. Holt, is the guest of Mrs. W. A. Metcalf, at Grand View Cottage.

The coach lines are doing a thriving business. Cheap fares have been put on an inducement for those seeking the seashore breeze, to patronize this resort, and we are guaranteed good service in way of travelling accommodations another season.

Mr. John O. Ray, chief engineer of the Sears' estate, is occupying one of the trim cottages on Manet avenue, whether he moved his family on Saturday last. We understand Mr. Ray has purchased this piece of property and intends making many improvements before another season.

Mr. Joseph A. Bird of "Bird's Nest" remove, who enjoys the reputation of being the champion angler, rather surprised the frequenters of Mearns' pier one evening last week by looking on at a twenty-pound cod. Ah! there! Joseph, rather slippery fish story.

It is rumored that a petition is to be presented to the Road Commissioners asking them to lay out a new road, viz: from the intersection of the new road recently built by the Manet Company. If this is done we then have a beautiful drive by the water's edge all the way from Mosquito Bridge, to the end of Sea street.

QUINCY POINT.

Mr. Lemuel Baxter has this week been on a trip through New York, stopping at Niagara Falls and other places of interest. Mrs. A. B. Nichols and children of Cambridge are spending the summer at the Point.

Master Lewis W. Hall of Marshfield is visiting at Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Lincoln's.

Mrs. A. DeLorey has gone to Canada for the summer.

The Schooner Wm. F. Collins, commanded by Capt. Daniel Higgins of this place, made an unusual record during her last trip. On Wednesday the 20th inst., the vessel went into Houghs Neck to load coal, sailed from there to Braintree, discharged the cargo and was down in the Roads last Wednesday night, completing the trip in just one week. The run from New York to Boston Light was made in 354 hours.

The Baptist Society will go on a picnic Tuesday to Nantuxet Beach.

Miss Lulu Brown and Sadie Jones have spent the week at the Point with much pleasure, salt water bathing having been especially enjoyed.

Miss Alice Harmon has gone to George town, Me.

The cottage which has just been completed on Mr. W. S. Redding's Place fronting the water view is very attractive and a pretty addition to his already fine estate.

Miss Rachael Hall of Leominster is visiting at Mrs. P. B. Mead's.

Mr. Herbert Packard has been enjoying a two weeks vacation at Muscovy, N. H.

Mr. Herbert Hayden is spending the week at Braintown.

Frank Coddige of Marshfield is enjoying a two weeks' vacation in this place.

SOUTH QUINCY.

The committee of Organized Labor, representing Quincy, a reception at Franklin Hall, Wednesday evening.

For an hour and a half he reviewed the labor problems which arose in the recent session of the Legislature, taking up each separately, and telling why he voted yes or no. The committee asked many questions which the gentleman kindly and intelligently answered, and his views were generally endorsed. There is talk of a public meeting in September.

Jose David of Bolton, Canada, was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Field Thursday. His weight attracts considerable attention as he weighs 389 pounds and is only eighteen years old.

Another barber is trying his luck in the post office building.

Friends have received letters from Rev. F. A. Friguglietti informing them of his safe arrival in Ireland.

Mumps are raging.

Mr. Louis Sanguinet and wife of South Quincy, are spending the summer at Cottage City, Martha's Vineyard. Mr. Sanguinet has a position at the Sea View House, and has just been appointed special police officer for Cottage City for the season.

Patriot Barry one of the operators at the game last Saturday was struck between the eyes by a foul ball and severely injured.

John Nagle captain of the McDonnell & Sons, which is composed entirely of regular employees of the firm, challenges any nine outside of the St. Johns and Wollastons for $25 to $100.

It did not look favorable for base ball playing last Saturday and some of the St. Johns nine did not put in an appearance. A nine was however picked up. Score: Highland Foundry, 14; St. Johns 4.

This afternoon the St. Johns will play in Holbrook.

The cellar of the new Hancock school-house has been cemented. H. O. Southern did the job.

ATLANTIC.

The rooms in Quincy school have been whitewashed, and the walls tinted during the vacation.

The members of the Atlantic Dramatic Club made an excursion to Ponkapog last Sunday.

While in a row boat pulling in an eel pot, Sunday, Bert Hall was swamped, but made his way unassisted to the shore.

Messrs. E. B. Wade, Roger H. Wilde and John Carver with their families went this week to Princeton where they have hired a cottage.

The Memorial Church are talking picnic, and will probably decide the place and date Sunday.

A Newwood Sunday School picnic at Squantum Wednesday.

Work has commenced on the Billings street extension, which residents of the place have long desired. The abolition now recognizes the desirability of the improvement.

WOLLASTON.

Remember town meeting this evening.

Mr. Field the genial expressman is meeting with well deserved success.

New houses are going up in many sections of the village.

A first class course of lectures will probably be given this fall in the M. E. Church. The pear trees are loaded as never before, the branches with their half grown fruit bending to the ground in many instances.

Miss A. M. Merrill left on Wednesday for New Hampshire, where she is to spend her vacation.

Rev. Mr. Swartz will begin his vacation about the middle of August, going West to his old home. Rumor has it that he will not return alone.

Mr. E. E. Williamson has been appointed District Deputy Collector of District number 48, Knights of Honor, which includes John A. Andrew Lodge of Hingham, and Pilgrim Lodge of East Weymouth, and has accepted the appointment.

The Village Improvement Society held an adjourned meeting on Wednesday evening in K. of H. hall.

Rev. C. M. Brown of Plympton gave two excellent sermons last Sunday at the M. E. Church, in exchange with Rev. Mr. Swartz. Next Sunday the pastor will preach morning and evening.

The tax collector has been personally distributing poll tax bills this week; an improvement over the old method of sending by mail.

Mrs. Dan Padella of Worcester, is the guest of Mr. John T. Cavanaugh, at his summer villa on Bay View avenue.

Mrs. I. M. Holt, is the guest of Mrs. W. A. Metcalf, at Grand View Cottage.

For the Patriot.

Reminiscences.

MILTON, July 25th, 1887.

It is a hard thing to find the oldest thing in a town.

You state in a late paper that there is a house in Canton that has been there for 40 years.

The house in which I now live was built in 1835, and was then shingled, and has been so ever since.

The shingles are good yet for several years.

You speak of a bean being removed from a child's nose by a doctor in the month.

The first thing that I can remember, is as I was crawling about the floor, I picked up a bean and put it up my nose, and then with my finger I pushed it out.

It was not removed until my father crooked the point of a pin and hooked it out.

A late paper from Wintthrop, Maine, speaks of a very old gun in that place, which was marked 1640.

I have seen a gun marked 1640, which was marked 1640.

Good yet and did service in the Revolution.

A late Hyde Park Gazette speaks of seeing a very old Independent Chronicle of 1815.

In looking over my old papers I found one of the same kind of 1790, and also a Boston Gazette of the same year.

The first issue of the Independent Chronicle of 1815, was published in the month of January, 1815.

John Hancock, Governor, for a day of thanksgiving and praise. Also the laying of the corner stone of the Capitol at Washington.

Quincy Ranks Twenty-six.

By a vote of 605 to 542—25 majority—the large town of Attleboro was divided last Saturday, and the town of North Attleboro was created.

A fact that does not appear to have been the wish of the new town, however, as the vote in that precinct was 371 to 234 against division.

The centres of the two towns are four miles apart. Each is admirably equipped for town work, having a high school, water works, fire department, library, bank, gas works, etc.

The division makes the two places remarkably equal in population, in valuation and in number of school children.

The town of Attleboro was, with the exception of Pittsfield, the largest town in the State. Pittsfield and North Attleboro are now the only towns larger than Quincy, which advances this town to twenty-six in population among the municipalities of Massachusetts.

In 1855 Quincy stood number thirty-one, five years later the census advanced her to twenty-nine, and the last census found her twenty-seven.

Then predicted that in 1880 her rank would be twenty-five. The division of Attleboro gives her one point, and she is now twenty-six.

The town of North Attleboro will fulfill the prophecy, unless Woburn overtakes her. While the chief industry of Quincy is the granite business, the town of North Attleboro is a manufacturing town.

Precipitation—Aug. 18th, 1.08.

The wind reached a velocity of 40 miles an hour Thursday.

On Sept. 1st, 1887, there will be an addition to the U. S. Signal Service of several new flags for giving the direction and intensity of storms on the Atlantic coast. Full explanations of all flags will be given in this paper later.

GEORGE S. BASS, Observer.

Druggists not to be Licensed.

By votes of two to one the Board of Selectmen refused on Wednesday to grant licenses upon application of the following druggists: A. G. Durgin, James F. Pierce, J. S. Whill, S. F. Willard and F. A. Reed. In each instance Selectman Eaton voted in the affirmative, and Chairman Hodges and Selectman Ripley in the negative.

Although the law passed by the recent Legislature reads that Selectmen "shall" grant druggist licenses whether the town votes "yes" or "no," it failed to affix any penalty for a disregard of its command.

Chairman Hodges declared that the law is a bad one; that the druggist with such a license could sell to whom he wished without fear, and without violating the letter of the law.

However, the large majority of no license voters are jubilant over the result, and no more so than Henry H. Faxon.

Property vs. Poll Tax Payers.

Comparing the tax payers of 1887 with 1886, it is gratifying to note that in the total number, the proportion of property holders has largely increased, while those who pay only a poll tax has decreased, as will be seen below:

In 1886.	In 1887.
Taxed for property, 2,571	2,792
Poll tax only, 2,562	2,486

Total number taxed, 5,133, 5,278.

While the total increase is 177, the increase in property taxpayers is 191. In 1886 the property holders had a majority of 68; this year they have 273.

The number of polls assessed this year is 3725, against 3720 in 1886, and 3732 in 1885.

Fire Department.

Engineer Duggan, Superintendent of the fire alarm, contemplates removing box 56 from the corner of Elmwood avenue and Farrington street to the Wollaston Foundry, and placing a new box at the Old Colony depot.

There is a strong movement on foot at Wollaston, to have the hydrant at the corner of Warren and Wintthrop avenues removed to the corner of Grand View and Central avenue. The latter locality is some distance from a hydrant and should have better protection from fire.

The Board of Engineers were petitioned some time ago to have the change made, but no action was ever taken on the matter. There are three hydrants on Warren avenue within a distance of 700 feet.

The supply pump has been put in thorough condition.

Another new horse is on trial at the Steamer house.

The Steamer hose wagon is at Wild's.

WHISTLE VS. STRIKERS.

The gale of Thursday entangled the fire alarm wire and the telephone wires on Water street near W. H. Dolbe's store, causing the whistle on the pumping station to blow at intervals for twenty minutes, and then it was only stopped by disconnecting. During all this time the fire men were perplexed to locate the box for the supposed fire. A singular feature was the fact that the bells and gongs did not strike.

Engineer Williams discovered the entangled wires, and by cutting off several branches of an overhanging elm, separated them.

City and Town Side by Side.

It will prove interesting to compare the Assessors' figures of Newburyport, a city with those of Quincy. They show the town to have a larger valuation, a larger gain, and a smaller rate:

Newburyport.	Quincy.
Population (in 1885), 13,716	12,144
Real estate, $5,620,880	$7,434,350
Personal property, $2,467,400	$1,070,293
Total valuation, $8,088,280	$8,504,643
Total gain, $500,932	$685,004
Number of polls, 3749	3725
Rate of taxation, $16.60	$16.50

Catholic Picnic.

The Catholic Sunday School had a lovely day for their annual picnic on Wednesday, and over 2000 were conveyed to Lovell's grove, several handsome four horse barges being employed. The result of the sports is as follows:

Quarter-mile race—Prizes $1, 50 cents. George Cahill first, J. Beardon second.

Three running jumps—Prizes $1, 50 cents. Frank Ward first, Dan Ford second.

Potato race—Prizes $1, 50 cents. Dan Ford first, F. Ward second.

Race for boys under 10 years—Prizes $1, 50 cents. T. Slay first, J. Bowler second.

Three-legged race—First prize $1, second, 50 cents. Ward and Ford first, Devany and Malone second.

MEN'S RACES.

One hundred yard dash—First prize $2, second $1. Michael Barry first, J. Farrell second.

Three jumps—Prizes $2 and $1. J. Mullane first, 35 feet 11 inches; J. Farrell second, 34 feet 10 inches.

Running hop, step and jump—Prizes $2 and $1. J. Mullane first, 18 feet; W. Farrell second, 37 feet.

Standing high jump—Prizes $2 and $1. W. Farrell first, 4 feet 8 inches; J. Farrell second, 4 feet 7 inches.

Running high jump—Prizes $2 and $1. J. Farrell first, 5 feet 6 inches; W. Farrell second, 5 feet 4 inches.

The Committee Encouraged.

The sub-committee on the street railway system for Quincy held a meeting Tuesday evening. They have secured a very good survey of the proposed route. One section they intend shall run directly from Quincy Point to the Quincy depot, and return through the Square, Chestnut, Foster and Washington streets. The other will run from the Centre via, of Hancock, Pierce, Franklin, Water, Copeland, and Willard streets to West Quincy.

Encouraging answers have been received from several street railways in other towns and cities. The committee expect to report before Sept. 1.

TIME WASTED.

Somebody has sent a communication for the PATRIOT, about the "grand old trees" in the rear of the Stone Temple. But the writer ought to have known that all communications sent to publishers of newspapers, without the author's name, are thrown into the waste basket.

Quincy Locals.

A. G. Coffin is rusticated at Nantucket.

Miss Lillie Taber is visiting Miss M. F. Upton in Bath, Me.

Rev. Henry Dorr preached to the Presbyterians last Sunday.

Henry Tirrell left yesterday for the Weirs and the White Mountains.

Miss M. S. Bumpus the telegrapher at the Quincy depot is at present employed in Lynn.

The ticket office at the Quincy depot is being changed so that it will be near the track.

An account book has been lost in Quincy this week which the owner desires to recover.

The Rev. G. A. Thayer of Cincinnati will preach in the Stone Temple Sunday morning.

John L. Maxim and family have returned from Maine and will reside in Quincy.

Mr. Wollaston Lodge L. O. O. F. have a candidate elected for the first Tuesday in September.

Mr. and Mrs. Theophilus King attended the wedding to Mrs. Cleveland at Marion on Monday.

Miss Mabel Shaw arrived home yesterday on the steamer Scythia from a thirteen weeks' trip abroad.

The malicious rumor concerning James Clark which was started last Saturday, was wholly untrue.

Miss Nettie Beard and sister are spending a few weeks with friends in West Townsend, Mass.

The valuation of Quincy is larger than that of the twenty-five wards of Boston, viz: Nos. 1, 3, 4, 5, and 15.

The Swedish Methodists now meet Sunday in Revere hall, having moved from the Washington street quarters Aug. 1.

John Quincy Adams was on Wednesday elected one of the directors of the Boston, Housatonic and Western Railroad.

After a lingering illness of four months Mr. Levi White passed away last Saturday noon, at his residence on Spear street.

With one exception the number of houses built last year was the largest in the history of the town. In 1871-2 170 were added.

In 1885 the average number of persons to each house in Quincy was 5.61. At the same average the population of the town is now 13,770.

An ex-liquor dealer probably exaggerated considerably in stating that 1000 barrels of malt liquors were brought to Quincy Fourth of July week.

Mr. Philip H. R. Pearson, of Newburyport, has been visiting John G. Faxon at his home, and they both returned to Newburyport this week.

Albert Keating started yesterday for St. John and Prince Edwards Island on a boat named the Gunning ship. He will be absent two weeks.

There was an unusually large number of deaths in Quincy for the week ending yesterday noon—nine in seven days. Seven were over 38 years of age.

Flowers, and fruit for the Boston hospital, may be left, on the afternoon, and evening of Thursday next, at the house of Mrs. M. A. Perkins, Chestnut street.

A New York electric street railway company are very desirous to put in the new line in Quincy. The first cost will be greater, but the running expenses one-half.

Twenty of our business men went to the Point of Pines on Wednesday, and after enjoying the attractions at this pleasant sea-side resort partook of an excellent dinner.

Edward B. Brown, an employee of the PATRIOT, is spending a three weeks' vacation in cruising along the North Shore. When last heard from he was at Newburyport.

Hon. Jesse E. Keith, Judge of Probate Court for Plymouth County, dropped dead in the Plymouth Court House Thursday. He formerly had an office in the Court room building in Quincy.

Town Clerk Giff informs us, that this far this year 640 dogs have been licensed; 566 males and 54 females. The number will probably reach 750 which will be in excess of the number last year, 701.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. F. Pettengill, Miss Grace Pettengill, Mr. William Davenport, Mr. Henry O. Studley, Mr. Wellington Mitchell, Mr. Edward Haverfield go today to Eastham on the Cape, for their annual visit.

Mrs. Harrison Whitney of Haverhill, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Thomas A. Marsh. We are pleased to say that she found her mother, who is in her 86th year, as well as could be expected considering her age.

The loan and gravel obtained in excavating for the new Unitarian Chapel is being put to good use. The walks and lawns have long been below the grade of the streets and consequently in rainy weather covered with water.

Misses Mary and Annie Gibson who have been connected with the store in Robertson's Block for several years are intending to start in business in the store recently occupied by F. A. Moreland & Co. We wish the young ladies success in their new enterprise.

Mr. G. F. Wilson, our veteran provision dealer, and his wife left Tuesday for Petersham, Mass. It is some time since they have been away to take a rest, and we hope they will have a good time and come back recuperated.

The State census of 1885 showed Weymouth to have the number in the number of houses, leading 2,333 or 139 more than Quincy. In the two years since, ending May 1st, 1887, Quincy has built 292 houses. Weymouth has built 1227. How about Bro. Esterbrook? has Quincy passed you in that point also?

The Quincy Board of Health have issued a valuable book containing their regulations, and also timely recommendations relative to disinfection, fumigation, anti-septics, deodorizers, infectious diseases, the habitation, dwellings, the site, the cellar, water closets, drains, sinks, cess-pools, well, outbuildings, etc.

The hay crop this season has been very good in this vicinity. But we know of no one who has cut a larger crop from a half acre of land than Mr. Chas. Parker of Atlantic. He housed from one cutting one and one-half tons, which is at the rate of three tons to an acre. His second crop from this piece, however, will be very light.

At a caucus on Wednesday evening the Prohibitionists chose several years are intending to the State Convention to be held in Worcester Sept. 7. Rev. Eben Mass, John O. Hall, Rev. Edwin Davis, Charles W. Whiting, W. W. Marple, Mrs. Joseph A. Pierce, Mrs. Annie Nightingale, Henry Chubbuck, W. Penniman, Nathaniel Nightingale, F. J. Paul, and David Badger.

A photograph, said to be of the late one in the world has been taken of the United States treasury building at Washington. It measures seven feet by four and is to be presented to ex-Secretary of the Treasury, Daniel E. Manning.

The Selectmen have voted to grant sixth-class licenses to the four druggists in town of Stoughton.

WOLLASTON.

Rev. Frank B. Sleeper of Plymouth will occupy the pulpit at the Baptist Church, Wollaston, Sunday morning at 10.45. Sabbath School at the close of the morning service.

Mrs. W. R. Lord returned from her vacation on Thursday.

On account of the M. E. Church being closed, the combined prayer and class meeting was held at S. B. Harrington's on Wednesday evening. The next meeting will be held one week later at Mr. Rich's.

Bye-lying on the sidewalk is as dangerous as ever.

Mr. Field the expressman has moved into Mr. Rice's house on Beale street.

Our dictators are quite busy.

It was a pretty "lively" funeral held at the Point of Pines on Wednesday evening by the Quincy Board of Trade composed of the grocers of the town. The "light weights" were out in force and after a "full" discussion it was voted to continue the business and postpone the "obsequies" until another year.

Look out for snakes in your sugar—the Board of Trade has been to Bevere Beach.

A new house is to be built on Norfolk street near the "grove."

Rev. H. B. Swartz left on Monday for his Ohio home where he will spend his vacation. Methodist church will not have their services for three Sundays, opening Sept. 11.

Mrs. E. E. Williamson has been quite sick during the past week.

The sun with its changing hues was a sight to behold Friday morning at about 5.30 o'clock. Did you see it?

D. L. Jewell's new house on Grand View avenue will cost about $12,000. It has twelve rooms and forty-nine windows.

The Wollastons were without the services of several of their regular players last Saturday at Everett and were defeated 13 to 5.

An exciting game may be expected this afternoon at the park—Wollastons vs. Hingham. The visitors are a strong team.

E. M. Gallivan of the Record who played with the Wollastons against the Arlingtons, had the joint of the thumb of his right hand broken last week by a swift ball at Wellington while practicing before the game; an exceedingly painful injury.

Mr. Gallivan rode three miles to Medford to have the fracture attended to and then returned and watched the game through. He may lose the upper joint of his thumb the surgeon says.

DR. HAGUE.

The publisher of the "Life Notes, or fifty years' outlook" by the late Dr. Hague, will contain the following earnest tribute. The work will soon be issued by Lee and Shepard, Boston.

Dr. Hague was in the eightieth year of his life, which had been marked especially by ministerial, literary, educational, and philanthropic achievement. He was a scholar in a broad sense, and his acquirements and abilities were of the highest order. He was a clergyman of profound religious convictions and of rare persuasive eloquence. He gave character to his endeavors, and embellished every occasion with his rich and varied knowledge. His aid to educational and to philanthropic institutions and causes is of permanent value. His writings will have a living and a permanent place in history; and this book, intended to be autobiographical to a considerable extent, will be found to contain the rich personal reminiscences of a noble life filled with great deeds, and consecrated to all that is uplifting—a life of love, sincerity, and of truth.

SOUTH QUINCY.

Mrs. J. A. McDonnell and family are at Nantucket for 10 days.

Wednesday morning the great challenge game for a purse of $50 was played on the St. John's grounds between the McDonnells and the Wilsons. The Wilsons were composed as follows: McDonnell & Sons—Lyons, pitcher and left field; O'Brien, catcher and short stop; second base; Ford, third base; T. O'Brien, short stop and first base; Hughes, left field; Carlton, center field; Cronin, right field. Wilsons—Morse, pitcher; Burrell, catcher; Mulligan, first base; Holbrook, second base; Hobart, third base; Murphy, short stop; Ingraham left field; Perry, center field; Doyle right field. The Whitechicks whitewashed their rivals in the first innings, and then scored three themselves. They continued to lead until the finish, scoring seven runs in the sixth inning, and by a combination of skill and safety hitting and costly errors. Below is the summary by innings:

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
McDonnell	0	3	1	1	0	1	0	0

The St. John's were defeated by the Stars of Chelsea last Saturday 10 to 9.

It is rumored that the Old Colony has purchased the land east of the track and Quincy Adams station.

John Boyle of the Bay State Granite Company had his leg and foot crushed by a stone last week.

In order to accommodate her constantly increasing business, Mrs. Kincaid has decided to raise her present shop and put in a large store.

District Court, Quincy.

Judge Humphrey has been absent on a vacation the greater part of the week, and Associate Justice Tower has dispensed justice as follows:

Eugene Dean of Randolph, drunk, committed to default.

Matthew A. Dunn of Quincy, drunk, committed in default.

The premises of H. K. Cushing of Weymouth were searched Monday, liquors found, and notice was issued Tuesday for Aug. 31.

James H. Kirby of Braintree on complaint of S. F. Bates was sentenced to thirty days in the House of Correction; for drunk, found guilty and appealed.

Officers Crook and Wilde did not find any liquors in Henry Tignon's room. Tousey's of Holbrook on Sunday.

John Keefe of Milton for drunk and assault, committed.

Thomas F. Ryan of Weymouth, drunk, committed.

Edward Hand of Randolph, drunk, committed.

Geo. F. Howard of Randolph, drunk, paid $3 and costs.

Michael Smith of Randolph, drunk, committed to default.

Charles Smith, Jr., Randolph, drunk, committed.

William Jackson of Weymouth for being a railer and brawler, discharged.

N. H. Nightingale of Braintree for larceny, committed.

Silas B. Totman and others of Weymouth for cruelty to a horse, discharged.

Joseph R. Totman of Weymouth on a like complaint, fined $20 and costs, which he paid.

OUTRAGED.

Mr. Charles Holmes, formerly of Quincy, died in the age of 65. Some twenty-five to thirty years ago he was the village smith, and his store was located adjoining the Hancock Street Cemetery, some fifty feet from Hancock street. The building he occupied was destroyed by fire.

The Democratic state convention meets in Worcester, Sept. 20.

G. T. Deffres has decided not to reopen a dry goods store in Quincy, but we learn the Misses Gibson will continue the business in the old stand in Robertson's block.

MEMBERSHIP. There are now over 1000 Young Men's Christian associations in this country, with a membership of 140,000, extending for Christian work $785,000. The aggregate in property, buildings, libraries, etc., is over $5,000,000.

HOUGH'S NECK.

The season has now almost reached its height and the next two weeks will find many of the cottagers making preparations for a return to their homes, to resume the cares and duties of their every day life which they had laid aside for a few weeks of pleasant enjoyment by the seaside. They will return strengthened and invigorated by the pleasant change and many will look forward to another pleasant season. Never, in the memory of the oldest resident has the number of visitors been equalled and had there been more cottages to let, they would have readily found occupants.

It is said that one reason for the increase in cheap fares, which has enabled people, with moderate means, to enjoy with their families a few weeks of sea shore life.

More cottages will probably be built by another season, as some lots have been sold, and it is to be hoped that a fine hotel will be built on the top of Great Hill which is one of the most desirable locations in this vicinity.

Saturday night was rather noisy on the beach, from the Red Lion to the Willow.

Look out for snakes in your sugar—the Board of Trade has been to Bevere Beach.

A new house is to be built on Norfolk street near the "grove."

Rev. H. B. Swartz left on Monday for his Ohio home where he will spend his vacation. Methodist church will not have their services for three Sundays, opening Sept. 11.

Mrs. E. E. Williamson has been quite sick during the past week.

The sun with its changing hues was a sight to behold Friday morning at about 5.30 o'clock. Did you see it?

D. L. Jewell's new house on Grand View avenue will cost about $12,000. It has twelve rooms and forty-nine windows.

The Wollastons were without the services of several of their regular players last Saturday at Everett and were defeated 13 to 5.

An exciting game may be expected this afternoon at the park—Wollastons vs. Hingham. The visitors are a strong team.

E. M. Gallivan of the Record who played with the Wollastons against the Arlingtons, had the joint of the thumb of his right hand broken last week by a swift ball at Wellington while practicing before the game; an exceedingly painful injury.

Mr. Gallivan rode three miles to Medford to have the fracture attended to and then returned and watched the game through. He may lose the upper joint of his thumb the surgeon says.

DR. HAGUE.

The publisher of the "Life Notes, or fifty years' outlook" by the late Dr. Hague, will contain the following earnest tribute. The work will soon be issued by Lee and Shepard, Boston.

Dr. Hague was in the eightieth year of his life, which had been marked especially by ministerial, literary, educational, and philanthropic achievement. He was a scholar in a broad sense, and his acquirements and abilities were of the highest order. He was a clergyman of profound religious convictions and of rare persuasive eloquence. He gave character to his endeavors, and embellished every occasion with his rich and varied knowledge. His aid to educational and to philanthropic institutions and causes is of permanent value. His writings will have a living and a permanent place in history; and this book, intended to be autobiographical to a considerable extent, will be found to contain the rich personal reminiscences of a noble life filled with great deeds, and consecrated to all that is uplifting—a life of love, sincerity, and of truth.

Poetry.
Live It Down.
"Has a foolish word been spoken,
Or an evil deed been done,
Has the heart been most broken
For the friends that soon are gone?
Let not sadness or the frown
Shake thy manhood—live it down!"

Miscellany.
Miss Grace's Happy Thought.
"Oh, Aunt Emily!"
It was such an eager, breathless voice
That Grace looked up in alarm
As Grace Douglas came in late
And with her hair all disheveled
And her eyes all wild and staring
And her hands all trembling
And her voice all quivering
And her heart all breaking
And her soul all crying
And her life all burning
And her love all glowing
And her hope all shining
And her faith all strong
And her courage all brave
And her patience all sweet
And her meekness all lowly
And her gentleness all mild
And her kindness all true
And her goodness all pure
And her beauty all divine
And her grace all heavenly
And her love all eternal
And her life all glorious
And her soul all saved
And her heart all pure
And her hands all clean
And her feet all washed
And her face all shining
And her eyes all bright

A Common Cold

It often the beginning of serious affections of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes, and Lungs. Therefore, the importance of early and effective treatment cannot be overestimated. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral may always be relied upon for the speedy cure of a Cold or Cough.

Speedily Cured.

I am satisfied that this remedy saved my life. - Mrs. Webster, Pawtucket, R. I.

I contracted a severe cold, which suddenly developed into Pneumonia, presenting dangerous and obstinate symptoms. My physician at once ordered the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. His instructions were followed, and the result was a rapid and permanent cure. - Mr. E. Simpson, Rogersville, Texas.

Two years ago I suffered from a severe cold which settled on my lungs. I consulted various physicians, and took the medicines they prescribed, but only temporary relief. A friend induced me to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. After taking a bottle of this medicine I was cured. Since then I have given the Pectoral to my children, and consider it the best remedy for Colds, Coughs, and all Throat and Lung troubles, ever used in my family. - Robert Vanderpool, Meadville, Pa.

Some time ago I took a slight Cold, which, being neglected, grew worse, and settled on my lungs. I had a hacking cough, and was very weak. Those who know me best considered my life to be in great danger. I continued to suffer until I commenced using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Less than half a bottle of this medicine cured me, and I feel that I owe the preservation of my life to its curative powers. - Mrs. Ann Lockwood, Akron, N. York.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is considered, by the one great remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs, and is more demanded than any other medicine of its class. - J. F. Roberts, Magnolia, Ark.

—Old Colony Lodge of Hingham has been invited to perform the initiatory work at the institution of new Old Fellows' Lodge at Cohasset in September, and has accepted. Crescent, 82, of East Weymouth will render the first and second degrees, while Willey of South Weymouth will perform the third degree upon the same occasion.

Household Receipts.

SCALLOPED TOMATOES. Take a deep pudding dish and butter the inside of it well; first put a layer of bread crumbs, then a layer of peeled, sliced tomatoes, then a small onion cut very thin; dredge on a little flour, pepper and salt; now begin with the tomato sauce, tomatoes, onions, onion and seasoning till the dish is full; the top layer must be bread crumbs, with salt and pepper and a few small bits of butter over it; put this in the oven, keep it covered with a tin plate for an hour, then remove the plate and let it brown. It does not require too hot an oven. It will take at least two hours to bake.

TEN MINUTE CAKE. One-fourth pound butter, little less than a pound of flour, same of sugar, six eggs, beaten separately, flavor with mace, bake in muffin rings.

TOMATOES AND GREEN CORN. Sew the tomatoes as usual, for thirty minutes, then add an equal quantity of corn cut or scraped from the cobs, and cook thirty minutes longer, with frequent stirring.

Season with salt and one large teaspoonful of butter, or with half a cupful of rich milk or sweet cream. If preferred it can be baked in an oiled pudding dish forty minutes.

CINNAMON CAKE. Whites of two eggs, one cup of sugar, one cup of milk, one-half cup of butter, one and one-half cups of flour, two teaspoons of baking powder. When baked spread the top and sides with the mace of the yolks of two eggs, three-fourths of a pound of brown sugar, one teaspoonful of white sugar.

CREAM CARROTS. Cut in half inch bits one pint of carrots. Boil in just enough salt water to keep them from boiling over; when tender add one pint of milk or cream, one teaspoonful of cornstarch, butter the size of an egg, salt and pepper to season. Simmer five minutes and serve very hot.

To heat cloths for hot applications without scalding your hands, lay a cloth between two folds of brown paper, place it on the stove, pressing the top one down with your fingers, and in a few minutes the cloth will be hot enough to blister.

"I have not referred to the cost in many of this traffic, the country, because after a consideration of its horrible effects upon the family and the State, the money question seems trivial, still it is worth considering. There are paid at the bars of this country for alcoholic stimulants, something near one thousand millions of dollars, annually, for alcohol, and the amount is increasing frightfully. Rum costs the country more than its bread, clothing, schooling, churches, education, and all combined. To illustrate take city, Toledo, with 90,000 population, supports 800 saloons. Each one of these must sell, to live, ten dollars worth of liquors each day. This average is very low, for the smallest cannot live upon less trade, and there are many whose daily receipts run up into the hundreds of dollars. It is probable that fifteen dollars per day would be nearer the figure. But at ten dollars per day it foots up eight thousand dollars. Multiply this by 365—for Sunday, and you get the appalling sum-total of $2,925,000 paid for liquors yearly in one small city. The amount is a long way beyond this, probably $5,000,000 would come nearer the mark. But this is not all. And the demoralization of labor consequent upon it, for not only does a week's work in the police force, of the pauperism, of the crime incident but directly chargeable to alcoholization, and the sum-total is something too vast to be put in figures upon paper.

Rum is the source direct of 90 per cent. of all the crime and pauperism of the country. To rum may be charged up the cost of the police, the criminal courts, and everything that is costly to the taxpayer. Ninety per cent. of the murders are to be credited to rum, and almost every gallows-tree is nailed in a whiskey-barrel. Take your jails, your poor-houses, your lunatic asylums, and all the machinery of justice and charity, figure their cost and add to it the amount actually paid for the poison, add to this the loss to the labor of the country through this one agency, and the pocket never receives a very severe shock. All this has been said and written a thousand times, but it cannot be said and written too often."

GEORGE S. BASS, Observer.

An Electric Street Railway.

The fifteen citizens who recently agreed to investigate the subject of street railways on Wednesday evening at the office of W. F. Lunt to hear the report of a sub-committee of which Mr. Theophilus King was chairman, and Mr. Fred H. Smith, secretary. Mr. M. F. Follen, Esq., president, and Warren W. Adams was secretary of the meeting.

Mr. Smith read an exhaustive summary of information from various quarters, relative to material cost of construction, running expenses, etc., also the figures of different contractors for different parts of the work. Very reasonable terms were offered by an electric company, with a guarantee of six months or a year. The sub-committee recommended an electric road, but before adopting the same they suggested that two or three of the committee visit Scranton, Penn., where a route was in working order.

The committee further recommended that a corporation be formed as speedily as possible, and that the line be put in before winter if possible. The following gentlemen signed the petition for incorporation, each agreeing to take one share of the stock, at a par value of $100: Henry H. Faxon, Theophilus King, Wm. D. Webb, J. F. Merrill, W. F. Lunt, George L. Gill, Warren W. Adams, John E. Drake, Levi Stearns, Fred H. Smith, and H. M. Follen. To make the necessary fifteen the following who were not present were counted upon to take a share each: W. T. Babcock, John R. Graham and John F. Follen.

The above stockholders chose the following temporary directors: Messrs. H. M. Follen, King, Smith, Graham, Gill, Faxon and Merrill.

The corporation will petition for a location from the Quincy and Weymouth line on the Point bridge to the Quincy and Milton line on Willard street, it being understood that the route shall be by the way of Washington street (on the south side) to the Quincy depot; thence through the center of Hancock street, and then along streets to Water street, and thence along the south side of Water and Copeland streets to the West Quincy depot.

It seems only a question of a short time when Quincy will have a street railway, and we take considerable pride in the fact that it is to be an electric road.

Public School Teachers.

The public schools of Quincy will open next Wednesday morning, after a ten weeks' vacation. While the scholars have been enjoying their holidays, painters, carpenters, masons and others have been improving the schoolhouses. The High School has been repaired. At the Adams the interior walls have been calcined, the ceiling whitened, the wood-work oiled and the grounds graded. At the Coddingdon the change will hardly be considered an improvement, for a few years, through the kindness of Henry H. Faxon, they have been permitted to play in the field in the rear, but a fence now separates the yard. With the special appropriation of $1000 at the John Hancock the entire basement has been cemented and the yard reggraded and greatly improved. The walls and ceilings at the Quincy School have received attention, and the furnace overhauled. At the Washington the furnace has also been repaired. The Willard School has been repainted, one room refurnished, the walls whitened, water put in on both stories for fire purposes, and an elevator put in to carry the supply of coal for the thirteen stories. At the Washington the grounds have been improved by grading the lot on the west side of the schoolhouse.

It is very gratifying to note that there are to be but a few changes in teachers. Last year there were four new principals, while this year there is to be no change.

The roster of teachers will be as follows:

A Test Case.

The first complaint against a druggist since the passage of the druggists' license law by the last Legislature was that brought in the Quincy Court this week by Henry H. Faxon against James F. Pierce, for keeping a common nuisance. W. G. A. Patton, Esq., appeared for the government, and Asa P. French, Esq., for defendant. Five witnesses were summoned: Archie Levesque, Touissant Bouchard, Moses Hubert, William J. Keegan and Nicholas Gibson. The first two testified to buying small quantities of alcohol for medicinal purposes, stating so at the time. Hubert had never bought any kind of liquor, Keegan had obtained alcohol of a clerk, during Mr. Pierce's absence, on three occasions one week; had never been asked or given any reason for what it was to be used; was not in the employ of Mr. Faxon, but had been three or four years ago. Gibson had never bought any liquor, and did not remember seeing Keegan for any; had received alcohol from Keegan, after giving him money to get it, but did not know whether he had drank it or not. The defence argued that the only damaging evidence was that of Keegan, who had acted as a paid spotter. It was unfair prosecution, and the time had come when Norfolk juries would not convict on such evidence.

The government claimed that six sales had been proved against Mr. Pierce. No entry or certificate that the liquor was to be used for medicinal or mechanical purposes had been made. Therefore, there was strong ground for conviction.

Judge Humphrey found the defendant guilty and imposed a fine of $50 and costs. He appealed and furnished sureties. It will come before the Grand Jury next week.

Poetry.
Boil It Down.
Whatever you have to say, my friend,
Whether witty or grave, or gay,
Condense as much as ever you can,
And say it the readiest way.
And whether you write of rural affairs
Or particular things in town,
Just take a word of friendly advice—
Boil it down.

For if you go spluttering over a page,
When a couple of lines would do,
Your letter is spread so thin, you see,
That the broad sheets plainly through;
So, when you have a story to tell,
And would like a little renown,
To make quite sure of your wish, my friend,
Boil it down.

When writing an article for the press,
Whether prose or verse, just try
To write your thoughts in the fewest words,
And let them be crisp and dry;
And when it is finished, and you suppose
That the broad sheets plainly through;
Just look it over again—and then,
Boil it down.

Miscellany.
"A DARLING."
Two old friends who had been parted for years met in a crowded city thoroughfare.
The one who lived in the city was on his way to make money that they had had little time to devote to the improvement of their skill in fashioning out of marble, stone or brass representations of men who won distinction among their fellows. Therefore the number of really artistic statues to be found in American cities is very few. It is a fact but little realized, however, that whatever statues or monuments Boston possesses today have all been erected during the past sixty years. It was not until 1828 that a public statue was erected.
This was the Washington statue which is seen in the Doric Hall at the State House.
It is the work of Chantrey, an English sculptor, and was erected by the Washington Monument Association.

"The second to be erected was the Harvard monument, which in 1828 was placed in the old burying ground on Phillips street, Charlestown. This plain, simple statue was erected by the graduates of Harvard University to the memory of John Harvard, its founder. The exact resting place of Harvard is not known, but is somewhere in the vicinity of the monument.

"The statue of General John Glover, a revolutionary general, was placed in position on Commonwealth avenue. It is of bronze, and represents the soldier in Continental uniform, while he holds a sword in his right hand.
"The statue of the artist designed by Martin Milmore, and his crowning work is the Army and Navy monument on Monument hill, on the Common. The monument is of granite, a decorated Doric column crowned by a bronze statue of Liberty, with a torch in her right hand.

Poetry.

Compensation.
One woman, in furs and velvet;
Another, in squalid rags;
One, relied by in her stately carriage;
The other, stood on the flags.

One woman, alone in her carriage;
By the other, a little child
Who, watching the passing horses,
Looked up in her face and smiled.
She stooped to her boy and kissed him,
And gave him a hoarse cry;
The other had just left costly blooms
Where her one son lay in dust.

One, back to her darkened mansion,
Weakly held death at bay;
One, back to her hut, where labor
Brought bread for the coming day.
Perhaps, as over the sands of life
Time's great tide ebbs and flows,
More faces among us are equal
Than their outward seeming shows.

—All The Year Round.

Miscellany.

A HASTY CONCLUSION.

"Very proud family, these Beltons?"
said Frederick Haynes, interrogatively, as he stretched himself on the grass near the stream where he and his friend, George Lyle, had been fishing.

"Oh, yes, very proud—can't touch 'em with a forty-foot pole," laughed George Lyle.

"Oh, you needn't laugh. You know what's reported in town about them is true. Mother and daughter are as proud as Lucifer."

"That's it exactly. Fred, people from a distance can always tell you more about your neighbors than you know yourself. But what if the Beltons are proud? That doesn't take away from the attraction of Laura Belton. I tell you she's a beauty. Fred, and you must not go back to town without an introduction."

"Now, George, I came down here to fish, shoot and have a good time with you, not to make love to your pretty girls, and least of all to introduce you to the Beltons. You must not go back to town without an introduction."

"What is the young lady's name?" asked Fred of the old woman the moment she appeared at his bedside.

"If the young lady wants you to know she'll tell you herself," answered the old woman in a tone that stopped all further questioning.

"Fred was mystified. All he could do was wonder who the girl could be."

"Well, this is a pretty state of affairs. So you've been trying your best to kill yourself," said the heavy voice of George Lyle, as he entered the cottage an hour after the accident.

"George, I consider myself the luckiest fellow alive," said Fred.

"Because you weren't killed, I suppose," answered George.

"Because I wasn't killed. No. Because I've made the acquaintance of one of the prettiest—of one of the nicest girls in creation."

"Yes, I know; she called at the house and told me all about it," said Fred, breathlessly.

"Miss Belton." And George Lyle walked away, whistling.

"Miss Belton!" cried Fred, and he started up in a manner that threatened dislocation of the shoulder the second time.

But George was merciful; and he stayed away and allowed Fred to ask himself a quiet morning.

"Don't say anything about it. I have forgotten it," and she placed her cool hand on his feverish brow as she continued, smilingly: "You know I can't help being so very proud."

When Fred recovered he didn't think the Beltons too high-toned to visit, and the acquaintance that was formed in so romantic a manner ended in a marriage.

The crowd tipped when a child is likely to be troubled in that way.

Hot fanned over the seat of neuralgia pain, and renew frequently.

Butternut for the removal of tan and walnut stains and freckles.

One of whom 17,007 were members of the G. A. R., received assistance.

The great object of the G. A. R., is to render aid to needy soldiers and their families, thus supplementing pension money.

One notices in examining the successive reports how the ex-soldiers are becoming older, feebler, and calling for greater aid.

We can have only good words for the splendid work effected by the G. A. R.

It is a matter of interest to us that our state has credited to it $51,011, a largeness than other state funds.

Soldiers and their dependants hesitate to receive aid as beggars or subjects of charity, but, when really reduced they can with the more grace, accept assistance rendered by their old associates in battle or hospital.

The Woman's Relief Corps, auxiliary to the G. A. R., is making a grand record of good deeds. It is worthy of the hopes placed on it, and of the praise it receives wherever its work of benevolence is known.

United States Weather Signals.
There are in use at the present time, nine flags of different colors and shapes, for the purpose of forecasting the weather.

No. 1. CLEAR OR FAIR. White, square flag, always indicates clear or fair weather.

No. 2. RAIN OR SNOW. Blue square flag, always indicates rain or snow.

No. 3. TEMPERATURE. Black triangular flag, always refers to temperature, when placed above the other flags, it always indicates warmer weather; when placed below the other flags, it always indicates colder weather; when not displayed the temperature will not vary five degrees from the temperature of the same hour of the preceding day.

No. 4. COLD WAVE. White flag, with a black square centre, indicates the approach of a cold wave and decided fall in temperature.

No. 5. STORM SIGNAL. Red flag, with a black square centre, Cautionary against a high wind, when a velocity of 35 miles per hour is expected within 100 miles of the station where displayed.

No. 6. WIND DIRECTION. Black and white flag, indicates direction of the wind. White stripe above, Direction Signal above Storm Signal for easterly, below for westerly winds. Black stripe above, Direction Signal below Storm Signal for northerly, below for southerly winds.

No. 7. CAUTIONARY. Yellow flag, with a white square centre, indicates a high wind, but not dangerous, generally westerly.

No. 8. RED PENNANT. Indicates that the wind will be from Northeast to South, with the storm centre approaching. Above Storm Signal for northeast winds. Below Storm Signal for southeast winds.

No. 9. WHITE PENNANT. Indicates the wind will be from North to South, with the storm centre passed. Above Storm Signal for northwest winds. Below Storm Signal for southwest winds.

Hints to Housekeepers.
It is best to buy raisins in small boxes, as they are injured by time.

For raspberry stains a mixture of weak ammonia and water is best.

Strong vinegar will cure the hiccough; give a teaspoonful.

For coffee stains put thick glycerine on the wrong side and wash out in lukewarm water.

For quincy use mullein leaves steeped in milk. Apply hot and often.

Clean brasses on mahogany or other furniture by rubbing with camels hair dipped in either powdered whiting or rotten stone and sweet oil.

To prevent a felon, take a cup of cold water, put into it a teaspoonful of saleratus, set it on the stove; put the finger threatened with the felon into the cold water and keep it there until it is so hot you cannot bear it, and the felon is killed.

Willow furniture that has not been stained or painted can be washed with salt and water and a brush; dry thoroughly before exposing to the dust.

To cure seed worms rub with baking soda. It is a sure cure.

To clean silver, moisten some very finely pulverized whiting with spirits of hartshorn, rub the silver with it, let it dry, then rub off with a soft cloth and polish with clean linen.

A severe but sure cure for corns is said to be crocodile. Wet the corns several nights in succession.

Dusting cloths must be washed often or they will carry more dirt into the rooms than they take out.

Ammonia and whiting will clean nickel plating nicely. Make a paste and apply it, then rub until bright with another cloth.

Hams can be kept wrapped in paper and packed in a barrel of ashes.

Wash out stains on clothes in cold water; ink stains dip in milk.

Temperance Advocate Faxon.

HOW HE MADE THE MONEY HE SPENDS FIGHTING HIM.

Mr. Henry H. Faxon of Quincy, Mass., is widely known as an earnest advocate of temperance and an active antagonist of the rum power, in fighting which he has expended many a dollar of his ample fortune.

Henry Hardwick Faxon represents one of the oldest New England families. Son of Job and Judith H. (Hawley) Faxon, he was born in Quincy, Sept. 20th, 1823, and is a descendant, in the eighth generation, of Thomas Faxon, who came with his family from England previous to 1647, and settled in that part of the ancient town of Braintree which now constitutes the town of Quincy. His father was an extensive farmer, whose prosperity is indicated by his leaving an estate of about $40,000. Henry passed his youth on the farm, his only opportunity to obtain an education being through the common schools. When 16 years of age he was apprenticed to a shoe-maker, and during his five years' experience he thoroughly mastered that trade. In 1841, in company with his brother, he commenced the manufacture of boots and shoes, principally for the Boston and Baltimore markets. About 1846 he changed his business, opening a retail grocery and provision store in Quincy, which he conducted for about seven years. During the last three years of that time he also carried on a bakery, and found time in addition to act as a real estate and merchandise auctioneer. His temperament was too active, however, for him to long remain in the quietness of the country; he was a retailer of country trade, and he became a retail grocer at the corner of South and Beach streets, Boston, the firm name being Faxon, Wood & Co. Two years later, he, with his brothers, moved to Quincy, Mass., and opened a grocery store at the corner of South and Beach streets, the firm name being Faxon, Wood & Co. ago and has always resided with his sister Mrs. Henry Ransom. The last few years he has been suffering from a chronic cough and has been unable to do any work in his garden and orchard in which he took great pride. He visited the village as usual last Thursday morning but in the afternoon was taken sick with pneumonia. He lingered until Monday when he quietly passed away. The funeral occurred Thursday, and his body was carried to Quincy for interment."

THE MAN-KILLER. Justice Pratt of Quincy has killed. In regard to the inquiry on the death of Thomas Harris, of Randolph, who was killed in July near Holbrook by the "Flying Duce" train, the justice says:

"To find that a railroad train can be run at a speed of fifty miles an hour over the crossing of a public road at grade is where that view is obstructed in either direction, and where the crossing is unguarded by a flagman or unprotected by a gate, without serious danger to the public travelling by carriage on such road, even though such public road is slightly travelled."

That is a decidedly mild way of putting it. Let us have a little compulsory legislation in regard to the master, and have these murders stopped.—Brookton Gazette.

This train has killed three persons and seriously wounded two others this season and should be re-christened the Man-killer.—Weymouth Gazette.

GEORGE S. BASS, Observer.

Public Health.

The fact that already there is some typhoid fever in our midst, as well as the necessity that should urge us to work individually to preserve public health, reminds us that our Board of Health has done us a most valuable service in sending out its pamphlets concerning ways and means that may be adopted in each household, towards gaining this desired end.

We have in past years, had a great deal of sorrow caused by fatal cases of disease that science now teaches us can be prevented. Two physicians in sending out a careful examination in relation to the extent Quincy has suffered, and found that our loss by death had been larger than that in other towns.

At a meeting of the Quincy Woman's League in the Spring, the chairman of the Board of Health, said substantially that Nature had given us a beautiful trio of elements that protect us from disease—“fresh air, pure water and the earth,” that great laboratory. We only fail to utilize these to the best advantage, and in following the carefully prepared directions given us in the pamphlet just sent out, we can learn to be Boards of Health without calling upon those who are so zealous in working in this direction.

We must all work together for this object of public health, as surely we all suffer together, by failing to observe proper laws. Mothers, wives, should study these directions so plainly laid out, to learn to preserve purity in their households. It is today, that we never before in the world's history, so much is being done to educate us in every way, and we are glad to know that the work expended upon this little book is being appreciated, and we trust it will be more widely circulated and studied.

Street Railway Petition.

The hearing of the Road Commissioners on the petition of the Quincy Street Rail Road Company for a location was to have been given in the Lyceum Room at the Town House this afternoon at 4.30 o'clock, but it is said the Road Commissioners have not it to grant the location, but that that power is vested in the Selectmen. If this be the case a delay of a few weeks may be necessary. Already a new petition has been forwarded to the Selectmen, to meet this exigency, and to push the enterprise forward as speedily as possible. The article of association was also defective, but has been revised and is published elsewhere.

Elm and Canal Streets.

The County Commissioners heard the petition yesterday to relocate Elm and Canal streets. W. G. A. Patten, Esq., appeared for the petitioners.

Road Commissioner Duggan said Elm street was considerably traveled, was very narrow and very crooked. It was one of the darkest streets he knew. He thought the uniform width should be four feet. Road Commissioners McKie and Cashman, Selectman Hodges, gave similar testimony.

Dr. William Everett, Rev. H. E. Cotton, and H. T. Whitman, appeared as remonstrators. They feared the character of the street would be changed to the detriment of property, if opened up for commercial purposes. Dr. Everett said it was a question of darkness he would himself furnish street lights along his property. The trees were large and old and should be preserved as a little inconvenience to business interests.

The need of relocating and widening of Canal street was clearly set forth by the Road Commissioners, and was substantially the same as before the town board last spring.

The commissioners viewed the streets later, and reserved their decision.

SEVERAL BICYCLE ACCIDENTS. W. E. Jackson, a salesman in the wholesale dry goods house of Jackson, Marshall & Dana, of Boston, has been boarding in Quincy this summer at Mrs. Perez Clubb's, on Washington street. Sunday he took a trip on his bicycle through Weymouth, and while coasting on a hill on Middle street, he was thrown, and striking on his head, he rendered unconscious. Dr. Fay of Weymouth attended him. He was recognized by his name in his cap, and on Monday brought to Quincy. His head, left hip, right leg and other parts of the body were injured, and he has been in a precarious condition all the week. Dr. Martin attends him, and yesterday reported him as improving rapidly.

Senator Morse Declines. To the Publishers of the Quincy Patriot: I hear from different sources that my name is being used by my friends as a candidate for re-election to the Massachusetts Senate. I have already held the office for the usual term of two years, and cannot have the office for three successive years. Although I feel very grateful for the kind wishes of my friends, and the large majorities given me at my former elections, in justice to the other towns of the old First Norfolk District, I must decline to be a candidate, or accept a re-nomination for the Massachusetts Senate. The First Norfolk District, I am sure, has other sons who can serve as well as, or better than, I, and I bespeak for my successor that sympathy and support which has been kindly awarded to me.

ELIAH A. MORSE. Canton, Sept. 21st, 1887.

District Court, Quincy. Thomas Shaw of Quincy, for drunk, $3 and costs.

Patrick J. Whalen and Edward T. Hand of Randolph, for like offenses, were committed in default.

Officers Wilson Belcher and Daniel G. Belcher found no liquor in their search at Dennis Buckley's of Hallowell, this week.

Michael Murray, John McCarthy and Charles Whitney tramps were committed. Officers Gardner and Pratt found no liquor in their raid on W. H. Looney of Weymouth this week, but the former was more successful at Thomas Smith's of the same town.

Bridge O'Brien of Weymouth for nuisance. Discharged.

C. A. Finkham & Co. will publish the daily paper in connection with the Mechanics fair.

Miss Alice M. Prescott desires pupils in vocal music, as will be seen by a card in another column.

This village is growing very fast,—some ten new houses being in process of construction, or to be built soon.

The gas and water companies are relaying their pipes on Beale street where the work has been made. When they are through the street will be in an almost impassable condition for teams.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith B. Harrington returned on Tuesday from Bethlehem, N. H., where they have been spending their vacation.

The “autumn leaves” are beautiful in their gorgeous colors.

Fred R. Quincy returned from Maine this week.

Mr. Fairbanks lost this week by poisoning a valuable pet cat, and his next neighbor, a highly prized dog, for which he had refused one hundred dollars. Mr. Lord's dog “Meg” was also very sick, supposed to be from the same cause. Whoever is doing this contemptible business is worthy the treatment he would undoubtedly receive should he be found out.

A citizen asks: Is not an extra town meeting to be called to vote the money to finish Beale street? It will cost less now than after the winter has thrown down more earth to be carted away. It will be a fearful loss for next Spring and an eye-sore all the time. Somebody move.

Rev. S. J. Astell will preach at the Baptist Church, Wollaston, Sabbath morning at 10.45. Sabbath School at close of service.

Rev. Mr. Swartz preached for the first time since his return from the West, in the M. E. Church last Sunday morning to a good sized audience. In the evening the prayer and preaching service was largely attended, many young people being present.

Rev. Fred H. Knight former pastor of the M. E. Church of Wollaston, but now of Jamaica Plain, was married on Thursday afternoon at the M. E. Church in Wakefield, to Miss L. D. Marion Butterfield; the ceremony being performed by Rev. D. J. Cole, assisted by Dean Huntington of Boston.

The church was handsomely decorated with potted plants and cut flowers, a large “wedding bell” made of zinnias and dahlias being suspended over the altar. Of the several hundred people that witnessed the ceremony, many were from Jamaica Plain, while quite a number went from this place.

After a two weeks' sojourn in Maine, Rev. and Mrs. Knight will be at home at number 2 Lester place, Jamaica Plain.

Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Sparrow celebrated their silver wedding on Monday evening.

The Road Commissioners talk some of calling a special town meeting to see if an extra appropriation will be granted for the completion of the Beale street. They claim it can never be done at low figure as now.

QUINCY POINT.

PERSONAL.

Rev. L. L. Fitch, of Wollaston, will occupy the pulpit at the Baptist Church on Sunday.

Rev. George Benedict will exchange with Rev. Mr. Norton of Quincy, on Sunday evening.

Mr. Lemuel Baxter is spending a fortnight with a party at “Harmony Camp,” Maine.

Mr. Frank O. Dean is absent on a business trip to Bay City, Detroit and Buffalo; introducing steam stearers, for marine vessels, for the Boston Steam Steamer Co., of Mansfield, Mass.

Mr. Wm. F. Stidinger has this week passed the examination of the Lowell School of Practical Design connected with the Institute of Technology, and begins the course of study there on Monday.

Rev. Lucius E. Smith, D. D., of Newton, associate editor of the Watchman, preached at the Baptist Church on Sunday last.

Mr. H. M. Federhen, Jr., won silver and gold medals at the Marshall fair last week in lawn tennis, singles and doubles.

Mr. Calvin Dyer, who has been very sick with typhoid fever for several weeks, is improving under Dr. Martins care. Mrs. Holden of Quincy, with her usual kindness and thoughtfulness to the sick, gave him a beautiful bouquet of flowers this week, which was much appreciated.

Master Marcus S. Wight met with an accident on Tuesday, while on his way to school. In attempting to walk the top rail of the fence on Howard street, by Bent's Creek he lost his footing and fell into the rocky bed of the creek. A distance of some twelve feet, striking on his face. He was badly shaken up, but escaped any very serious injury.

Mr. T. B. Thomas is about to engage in the manufacture of hammocks, in addition to his already well established tire protector business.

Many of the young people at the Point will learn with sadness of the death of Mr. Lincoln Hanson of Charleston, formerly of this place. He was in the employ of the American Express Co., of Boston, and held a responsible position. He was ill one week with brain fever, and died on Friday last, at the age of 22. He was buried from his late residence, in Charleston on Sunday. He leaves a widow and one child.

Several of our young people are talking of attending the evening dancing school at the center.

Quincy Point seems to furnish nearly all the officers for the Republican town committee, the present and ex-chairman, and the present and ex-secretary all hail from this district.

The corner stone of the new Universalist Church at Franklin, Mass., to replace the one burned in 1880, was laid last Saturday afternoon. Rev. W. C. Sellick, pastor, conducted the exercises. The sermon was by Rev. A. E. White of Cambridgeport.

We are glad to know the Jennie Calk Comedy Company are coming. “An American Princess” is one of the best comedies on the stage; full of fun and everyday life that makes it more real to us. You will enjoy a good laugh if you go.

Mrs. Elizabeth Putnam, the Danvers centenarian, aged 102, died Tuesday.

SOUTH QUINCY.

The play “Little Brown Jug” and variety entertainments given in St. John's hall on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, were well attended and interesting. Several of the musical specialties were particularly popular.

Daniel O'Connell of West Quincy had his pockets filled of seventy dollars at the ball grounds last Saturday.

George L. Baxter continues seriously ill.

Andrew W. Gardner and Warren Dunbar were thrown from a buggy at the corner of Water street and Quincy avenue last Saturday, but escaped uninjured.

The horse slipped his bridle and became unmanageable; after the capsize he freed himself and ran.

H. L. Kincaid, a member of the 1st of May Regiment, went to Philadelphia last week.

Randolph, Stoughton, Brockton and Quincy parties surprised Mr. and Mrs. Stephen N. Swain, Tuesday evening, at their residence on Mount Pleasant.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. James S. Baxter were most thoroughly surprised on Wednesday evening, at their home on Pleasant street, by the calling (in a familiar and informal manner) of about thirty of their friends, bringing with them choice flowers and other tokens of remembrance, among which was a handsome lounge of unique pattern.

The occasion being the 25th anniversary of their wedding. Hearty congratulations and best wishes were the order of the evening, and the following poem written for the occasion was read:

The years roll on; you're looking back today The path you've travelled all your wedded way.

You note the vows you said— You heard the fond friends whisper, “They are wed.”

And now, with trustful hearts, the new life has begun.

A home was founded. One by one The little practices came your hearts to bless, And each and every day with each soft caress.

Not all were here to stay, Some early plumed their wings and flew away.

So joy and sorrow blend, And now you say, “I had my best and well; we are content.”

Dear friends, we come to you tonight, knowing your worth and walk, To wish you joy and of the past to talk.

The record of the past without a stain May all the coming years repeat again.

Your future aim be still To walk in faith, to do the Master's will; And as the shadows lengthen, And the sun sinks in the west, The glory of life's setting day May be the brightest, best.

ATLANTIC.

Over 200 feet of concrete sidewalk has been laid this week on Billings street in front of the residences of Roger H. Wilde, E. H. Train and the Misses Emery. More will soon be put in on the same street between Newbury avenue and Newhall street.

An effort will probably be made to raise one-half the cost of a concrete sidewalk on Depot street.

W. H. Glover and friends are in Maine on a fishing trip.

Fred Nye and Fred Jenkins have returned from a week's outing at Scituate, gunning and fishing. Frank Hatch and Henry Dawson helped them at a bird pie Sunday.

The Board Commissioners heard the petition to lay out the extension of Billings street on Tuesday.

The subject of Rev. Mr. Bristol's Sunday morning sermon will be: “What have you done for Christ?” Evening theme, “The Mistakes of Life.”

Commencing a week from Sunday evening the praise service will begin at 6.45; preaching service at 7.

A janitor is wanted for the Memorial Church.

The Atlantic Dramatic Club played “Little Brown Jug” at the St. John's hall at South Quincy on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.

The street band, six pieces, paid the village another visit on Wednesday.

MILTON.

At the Republican caucus Wednesday evening the following delegates were chosen: State—Joseph C. Whitney, Benjamin A. Ham; Councilor—David W. Tucker, Cyrus Brewer; Senatorial—Hon. Edward L. Pierce, G. A. Fletcher; County—J. Walter Bradley, Joseph H. Spafford. The town committee chosen were: J. P. Churchill, Nathaniel Godfrey, O. A. Andrew, J. H. Spafford.

The Blue Bell base ball club had an assembly in Washington hall last evening.

Paul Babcock, son of Josiah Babcock, entertained between twenty and thirty of his young friends last Saturday evening, on the occasion of his ninth birthday.

William Robinson and Robert Forbes are in Madison, N. H., for a week's vacation.

Rev. H. H. Mayhew formerly of Milton, but lately of Yarmouthport, has accepted a call from Ohio.

VICINITY NEWS.

—The many Quincy friends of David Lincoln, formerly owner of the yacht Flora Lee, regret to learn of his suicide by shooting on Saturday morning and thirty of his friends.

The rash act was committed in the South Boston Yacht Club house, and no cause is assigned. He was about twenty-five years of age.

—The Charitable Mechanic Association fair will commence in Boston next Tuesday, and promises to be as attractive as usual. The admission will be but twenty-five cents.

—An attempt was made last Saturday evening to wreck the Old Colony train near Montello station, the engine leaving Boston at 6.07.

WEST QUINCY.

The sudden death of Mr. John Allison on Monday, by typhoid fever, removes from our midst a fine young man, who leaves a widow and child. He was employed at the Boston Branch grocery as a clerk, and his associates acted as pall bearers at his funeral Tuesday, the store being closed. Rev. Mr. Muse officiated.

The Willard school children make quite a regiment as they file out of the school yard at the close of the sessions.

A runaway horse attached to an order wagon put his head through the store window of J. F. Robertson on Monday.

The M. E. Church is making extensive arrangements for its harvest thank-offering service to be held on Sunday, when a grand display of agricultural products will be made. It will be followed Monday night by a festival and sale.

West Quincy is anxiously waiting and hoping for the proposed street railway. The people recognize the great advantage and accommodation it will be to the place. They regret that their main streets are so narrow.

Two or three cellars and new houses are under way on Barnard Clark's property. Mrs. H. Ginn has received her fall millinery.

Mr. T. L. Williams, a jeweler of fifteen years experience, has located in Farnum's block, West Quincy, where he will be pleased to see his old Quincy friends.

The occasion being the 25th anniversary of their wedding. Hearty congratulations and best wishes were the order of the evening, and the following poem written for the occasion was read:

The years roll on; you're looking back today The path you've travelled all your wedded way.

You note the vows you said— You heard the fond friends whisper, “They are wed.”

And now, with trustful hearts, the new life has begun.

A home was founded. One by one The little practices came your hearts to bless, And each and every day with each soft caress.

Not all were here to stay, Some early plumed their wings and flew away.

So joy and sorrow blend, And now you say, “I had my best and well; we are content.”

Dear friends, we come to you tonight, knowing your worth and walk, To wish you joy and of the past to talk.

The record of the past without a stain May all the coming years repeat again.

Your future aim be still To walk in faith, to do the Master's will; And as the shadows lengthen, And the sun sinks in the west, The glory of life's setting day May be the brightest, best.

For the Patriot.

Village Improvement.

There is a charming lot of landscape on Hollis avenue, Braintree, where late has done a great deal in village improvement. The houses there are not expensive ones, but very dainty in shape and color, and as no two are alike, a charming effect is gained. Finely sod
